THE MULTI-MILLIONAIRE MIND©

"If you learn how to become a multi-millionaire, becoming a mere millionaire becomes a lot easier."
- T. Harv Eker

Would you love to live an amazing first-class lifestyle? Would you love to live an amazing first-class lifestyle without working? If so, you've come to the right place. My name is T. Harv Eker and welcome to the 20th anniversary bonus for the book, Secrets of the Millionaire Mind©.

First, I want to thank you for purchasing my book. It's become an international bestseller in 41 languages with over 6.5 million copies sold and more to come. My agent, who has dealt with virtually every major personal success and financial author over the past 25 years, calls the book a "phenomenon" because…

"It's the book that keeps on selling." I appreciate that but I prefer to call it, "The book that keeps on helping." Because within its pages you will find the root, I repeat, the root cause of all financial success, mediocrity or struggle. And what exactly is the root cause? You! And what specific part of you? Is it your arm? Your leg? Your pinky finger? Nope. It's your mind. As in, how you think predominantly about money, wealth and yourself. And more importantly, how you got your "thinking" and whether those thoughts are helpful or detrimental to your success and even your happiness.

So, congratulations for getting the book. It's an eye-opener that has changed the lives of hundreds of thousands if not millions of people and my hope is that it changes your life too. Good or Good?

I also want to congratulate you for downloading this bonus. My guess is that it will be an even bigger eye-opener. In fact, for a lot of people, reading this is going to be very uncomfortable, maybe even shocking!

Let me explain why and part of that is how this bonus came about. It will serve as a strong starting point for where we are headed. Are you ready? Ok. Let's go!

Several months ago, I was having a conversation with my publisher, Harper Collins, about the upcoming 20th year of the Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book. By the way, how crazy is that? 20 years? I feel like it's been maybe 5 years at the most! Time flies. True or true! Anyway, we discussed the possibility of updating the book. They asked me what parts of the book could be appropriate for changes. I said "Well 20 years later everyone still has a mind, and most people still have programming or conditioning that is not supportive to achieving the highest levels of financial success. So other than a few examples, nothing to change there."

As for part 2 of the book, the 17 wealth principles, these are generalized principles that have stood the test of time. They're not only still valid but even more valid today than they were then because there's so much negativity out there. "Nothing to change there." They asked again, what would you update? I replied that I would update the title, and I would update the intention that that title represents. They asked me what that exactly means and I said....

Wait! Before I continue... you know how in some movies they show you a scene from the ending at the very beginning and then they go back and fill you in on how that ending came about? We're going to kind of do the same thing here. I'm going to show you the ending or the amount of money you are going to need if you want to live a first-class lifestyle and then we are going to back fill and tell you how we got to this number and what you need to do to achieve it. Good or good?

"The first step to every achievement starts with setting the right intention." – T. Harv Eker

Ok, back to our conversation with the publisher. Recall that I said I would only want to update the title and therefore the intention for the book itself. Ok, so what the heck does that mean? It means that 20 years ago when I wrote this book entitled Secrets of the MILLIONAIRE Mind, becoming a "millionaire", which means having a net worth of 1 million dollars (USD) was still a valid and might I add, enviable accomplishment. In fact, if you said that you were a millionaire the inference was that you were rich. I remember back in the day if anyone asked me what my goal in life was, my answer was simple and direct, "I want to be a millionaire." "Wow! That's quite a lofty goal", they would reply.

So, when I wrote the book, becoming a millionaire was a big deal. NOT ANYMORE. Things have changed. Have you noticed? Just 20 years later, assuming you want to live a first-class lifestyle, a million bucks doesn't buy you squat! Of course, it depends on where and how you want to live but for the most part, if you want to live what I call an affluent lifestyle, becoming "just" a millionaire isn't going to cut it.

Why? Mostly because the cost of everything has not just gone up in the past 20 years, it's gone crazy! True or True? I want to reiterate that this is for people who want to live a first-class lifestyle, and that's who I'm talking to. If you want to live a broke or middle-class lifestyle, you would be better off learning from someone else. I'm not disparaging those lifestyles but that's just not what I believe in and it's not what I teach. I train people who want to become either rich, or at least financially free, and preferably sooner than later. But the first step is that you must want to accomplish that. If not, what's the point? Why would you need any further knowledge or training? Let me put it this way, nobody needs any advice on how to be broke. And to me, middle class isn't far behind. So, let's get that out in the open right now, ok?

If you're intention ISN'T to be financially successful at a high, high, high level, save your energy and do something else. If your intention IS to be wealthy or rich, or live a first-class or affluent lifestyle, or even to be financially free more quickly, then I believe my work could be very helpful to you. If you're still with me, let's continue. By the way, I just wrote the stuff above to get rid of the pretenders.

Having said that, one more thing; if you have read my books or even more so, have taken any of my live trainings or home learning programs you will know that I have a very direct, no B.S., pull-no-punches, in-your-face, style. Those who really know me, call it "tough love". In other words, I'm with you. I'm on your team. But for right now, I'm the coach and you're the player. No time to mince words and make nicey, nicey to everyone. We are here to help you get a great financial result and if that's not your goal then we're not a match. There are probably some things I could learn from you where you'd be my coach. However, for this topic at this time, I'll be the teacher. Fair enough?

So now are you ready? Fasten your seat belts. Here we go!

Ok, so where were we? Notice this movie jumps around a bit... fortunately or unfortunately, that's just how I think and how I talk so that's how I write. Oh well. I appreciate your understanding and your willingness to learn regardless of my style. Speaking of style, you might also notice that I ask a lot of questions. Why? (that's a question) To keep you involved and your mind engaged. Good or Good? (that's another question). Also, you might also notice that there's a lot of repetition. What's the word? Repetition. That's intentional. Why? Because…

"Repetition is the mother of learning."

In short, I don't want you to "read" this, I want you to "learn" this. Make sense? Thank you.

One more thing. All references are in U.S. dollars for ease of description. Just do your best to convert into your own currency. I understand that some parts of the world and even some parts of America have a lower cost of living, but I'd still recommend you work with the numbers I'm using here because I'd rather you end up with more money than you need than less. Good or Good?

Ok, we were talking about how a million-dollar net worth isn't going to work anymore if you want to live a first-class life. Assuming you live or want to live in one of the best neighborhoods in your area, how much does a beautiful home cost today? Well again, it depends where you live but for the most part, I'll bet the price is well over a million for one of these homes. And if you live in any of the most popular or attractive areas of the country, the price of a beautiful home is close to 3 or 5 million or more.... a lot more! And that's just for your house!

Let's talk about lifestyle. Before my book was written I sent my kids to private school for some time. The cost? $5000 a year per kid. Today, that exact same school charges $50,000 a kid!

Back when I wrote the book the most expensive steak at a high-end restaurant would cost about $20 to maybe $25. The other night we went out to a place called Wolfgang's Steakhouse. It's not Wolfgang Puck, who is just as expensive, it's a different restauranteur who has several locations and is highly successful. Can you guess what a steak there cost now? The filet was $120. The porterhouse was $220... for a STEAK! Crazy, right?

Might you want a drink with that? Sure. We go to Spago's a lot because it's just down the street. Spago's is a well- known, high-end restaurant and yes, this one is owned by the world-famous Wolfgang Puck. Alcoholic drinks are now $26 a drink. When I wrote the book, drinks were maybe $5 to $7. Oh, you don't care for alcohol. No worries, I've got you covered. You want what's called a mocktail (no liquor) or maybe a soft drink. That'll be $14 please! What?

You don't go out to nice dinners much? (Hope it's not because you don't have the money and if it is, we're going to fix that!) No worries. Again, got you covered. Have you seen the cost of groceries lately? Scary! I don't recall what I bought the other day, but it was nothing special and it all fit in a small paper bag, $120! WTF (What The Fk)? Is there a mistake here? Nope. That's just what stuff costs these days. True or true?

Anyone drive a car? If you're still using gas or petrol, what are those prices like? Yes, they fluctuate up and down depending on what the oil companies and the tax agencies can get away with, but have those prices gone up over the last 2 decades? Again, when I wrote the book gas was about $2 to $2.50 a gallon. The other day I paid $6.10 a gallon. Yes, both prices were for premium grade and in California, but still, it cost me $126 to fill up my tank and it's only for a small sport size Porsche.

Do you have cable or streaming on your tv? I don't want to depress you but 20 years ago you could have the ultimate cable plan with over 100 channels for like $12 a month. I think our cable and streaming bill last month was over $140! That's more than a 1000% increase in cost!!!! Nutso!

My parents always said that if I didn't get good grades I would turn into a bum. I didn't get good grades, and I left college, so I guess I did turn into a bum... a ski bum.

In those days, if you didn't have a season pass, a lift ticket only cost $12. I know that sounds insanely low, but at the time it felt like a lot. (As in who the heck has 12 bucks!) At the time the book was written a lift ticket was closer to $40 or in some places up to $60. Now, it's (take a big ass gulp) it's $295 per day, per person!!!! This was at Whistler in British Columbia and the same for Vail, Colorado. I haven't skied in a couple of years, so I just looked this up and was in shock myself. WTF happened? $300 to ski for the day? Great news though, kids are only, wait for it.... $206 a day per kid. So, if you're a family of say four, two adults and two kids, it's going to cost you over $1000 a day to ski and that's just for the tickets. What about the gas and the food? What about the skis or boards and boots and clothing?

You almost need to be wealthy just to going skiing and even wealthier if you want to play golf. I used to live in Kapalua, Hawaii overlooking the golf course. Every time I visit there I look around and think, "It's so beautiful." What's not so beautiful however is the price. A single round at that course is now $425! Do you know how much it costs to play a famous course like Pebble Beach? $730! And you have to stay at the resort for 2 nights, at a cost of another $2000, just to get on the course. Sure, you could find a course in your town for probably $50 bucks but remember, we are living a first-class life here, so no, I/we don't play on farmland.

Have you considered going on a wonderful vacation with your family to Disneyland lately? Disneyland; "The Happiest Place on Earth." You know who's happy? The corporate leadership and the shareholders! Sure, the rest of us can enjoy it, but it comes with a cost. A big cost. The first time I visited Disneyland; I paid $18 for the day plus $4 for parking. The average wait time for a ride was about 20 minutes. Today, a 1-day ticket is an average of $135 per person plus $60 for parking. If you want to visit the adjacent park on the same day, add another $75 per person. Meaning for a family of four you're looking at between $600 and $900 for the day plus food and souvenirs. Now you're well over $1000! Still happy? Not so much because guess what you get for your thousand bucks? You get to stand in line for between 1.5 and 3 hours for each ride. Still happy?

But wait! There's some good news. Have you heard they have VIP tickets? No waiting. Awesome! Except for one thing; the price. The VIP tour ticket will cost you, (take a deep breath) an average of $700 per hour! With an average minimum of 8 hours. Meaning it's now going to cost you almost $6000! For a day! And yes, you can bring 9 people with you. Although I heard from an insider that the average number of people in a VIP group is 4-6. Hold on. You still must pay the park's daily entrance fee! But wait, there's more! Unless you live nearby, you're going to have to stay at a hotel. Hopefully one of Disney's themed hotels. They're so much fun but again, they cost a small fortune. Bottom line, your 1 day, 1 night vacation now is going to run you close to $10,000. Still happy? Yes. Why? Because you are reading this and will hopefully become a MULTI-millionaire. So, spending $10,000 to have an awesome day with your family will be a drop in the bucket. Good or Good?

I could go on and on and on and on but is the point clear yet? I sure hope so. (And I hope you haven't thrown up!) Bottom line, to live a semi-decent lifestyle that includes your choice of the items and activities I've mentioned above, costs a fricken fortune. True or True?

So here is the movie ending we were talking about. Ready?

Forget becoming a millionaire. It's not enough; not nearly enough anymore. Forget becoming a double millionaire, meaning your net worth is closer to 2 million. And forget even trying to become a triple millionaire, with a net worth of 3 million. My friends, by the time we're done here you're going to discover that none of these, what used to be lofty goals, is going to be enough to live a first-class lifestyle today and certainly not tomorrow, at least in the most desirable places.

"Wait, what? I'm not even close to being a one millionaire."
- You, The Reader

"Harv, what the frick are you talking about? You're scaring the crap out of me. I really want to live a first-class lifestyle. I would love to be financially free as soon as possible. I would love to get rich. But to be honest I'm not even close to being a one millionaire yet." For some of you, it might be, "I don't even have my first $100,000 yet. So, if I'm not anywhere close to being a millionaire how can I even think of the numbers you're talking about here?" Great question. Would you like to know the answer? Please remember, I have well over a million students from all over the world and all walks of life, so I have a lot of experience with this. From that experience, here's the answer; If you learn how to become a MULTI millionaire, becoming a mere millionaire becomes a lot, lot, lot easier.

Do you get my drift here? I'm a big believer in the power of intention. I'll talk more about it later, but for now, suffice it to say that all else being equal: "You'll get what you think you'll get," and "You'll go where you plan on going." As I said, there are many factors in play but the first is to get clear on what you want. Make sense? More on this later.

The Past Does Not Equal The Future (unless you let it!)

Have you heard the saying, “It doesn’t matter where you start. What matters is where you end?” Do you agree? I sure do and in my experience people who also agree with this statement are either highly successful or have a good chance of being successful. People who do not agree are either broke or close to it and unfortunately probably will be for the rest of their lives. Why? Because they are defined by their past. I can tell you 1000% that the past does not equal the future... unless you let it! I know over 100 multi, multi, multi... (keep going for a while) millionaires, and the vast majority of them came from little or nothing. I’m in that category as well. My parents came over on the boat with only the clothes on their backs and half a loaf of bread. They worked hard to give my sister and I the best life they could. I grew up with “enough” but that’s about it. So pleeeeeeeeeeeese don’t tell me that you can’t succeed because of your past. That is just not true unless you decide it’s true. Give yourself a chance. Believe in yourself just a little. Yes, this ride might be uncomfortable but something I’m known for saying is:

“After uncomfortable, comes comfortable.”
- T. Harv Eker

Meaning once you’ve done anything for a while and done it again and again, what was once uncomfortable eventually becomes comfortable. Yes or Yes?

And for those of you who are already doing quite well, congratulations. Time to level up your game, get even richer and go for the absolute best life and lifestyle possible. Good or Good? So now you know the ending. Your intention is not to become a "millionaire" anymore. You're going for multi-millionaire. How many "millions"? Well as you read on, I will show you exactly how much money you'll need to live the lifestyle you desire, but also strategies for how to get there. Good or good?

So welcome to The MULTI-Millionaire Mind.

A Transformational Story

Please listen closely. I want to tell you a transformational story. Several years ago, a friend of mine who was a bit out of shape decided to take up running. To help motivate her she decided to run in 5-mile races in nearby towns. She started training. First trying to get to one mile, which was quite difficult for her. Then two, then three, then four and after a couple of months she finally completed five miles. She was proud of herself. So, she ran her first race. There were 65 women running. And she came in... wait for it. Dead last. Not so proud anymore.

So, she started training harder and more often. In fact, she started running 5 miles every single day. Good or Good? She felt great about herself. She ran her next race. That race had only 24 women in it. And this time she did not come in last. Because of all her 5-mile runs, she came in 20th. Uggg. She was depressed. What the hell? She's running 5 miles every single day training for these 5-mile runs and she still isn't close to the top?

She decided she was never going to get better and stopped running... for a month. Then something amazing happened. Thank you, Universe. Would you like to know what it was?

She started dating a guy who was a marathon runner. And a good one. She told him her story and how she ran 5 miles every single day trying to do semi-decently at her 5-mile races. All she wanted was to come in top 10, but it never happened.

He asked her if she'd be willing to try again and he would coach her. She had never been coached and was excited. So, they went out for their first run together. They got to her 5-mile mark and can you guess what happened?

Right, he asked her to just keep going. She was shocked but kept going and got to 7 miles. He then said, "You know everyone has their best distances. You're a great long distance runner. Let's get you in amazing shape. Let's train for a marathon." Any idea how long a marathon is? You said, 26 miles, right? Right.

And so every day they ran together. She got to 10 miles and after a few months got to 20. A month after that she made it. She ran 26 miles. The marathon distance. Good or Good?

Now here's the clincher. One day he told her that he'd signed them up for a marathon race a few towns away. She was hesitant but he said it's just for fun. Let's just go for a run. However, when they got to the registration table she found that he was running in the marathon, but that she was entered to run in the 5 mile race that was also part of the event.

Wait what? She was flustered and said to the registrar, “There’s been a mistake. I’m supposed to run in the marathon with my boyfriend here.” Her boyfriend looked at her, smiled and said, “I’ll see you later. Good luck.”

She runs the 5 mile race. There are over 50 women. What do you think happens? She breezes by all of them and wins easily.

She waited for her boyfriend at his marathon finish line and before he could even catch his breath she yelled, “You tricked me.” He smiled and said,

“Honey, if you train to run 26 miles, running 5 miles becomes easy.”

My friends, once again, in the same way, if you train to be a multi, multi, multi, etc millionaire, then becoming a mere one millionaire becomes a lot easier.

There’s an awesome saying:

“If you shoot for the stars, you’ll at least hit the moon!”

Are you excited? If I were you, I would be. Why? Because I’ve had a lot of students learn what you’re about to learn and get rich, really rich!

Are you ready for more? Ok. Let’s do it!

WINNNING THE MONEY GAME
The path to financial freedom

The #1 reason most people don't get what want is because they don't know what want. Clarity leads to power. What is power? Power is the ability to do or act. Unfortunately, most people play the money game with no clear objective. Playing the money game without a clear objective is like playing basketball without hoops. You can dribble and pass and shoot the ball around forever, but you can never score!

So, what's your objective when comes to money? What constitutes winning the money game for you? Is it having the bare essentials in life and just getting by? Is it being comfortable and able to afford the necessities but not the "finer" things in life? Is it earning $100,000 a year? Is it $500,000 a year? Is it becoming a millionaire? A multi-millionaire? Is it being able to retire someday but living off a small pension or even a smaller social security? Or is it being fully financially free in a first-class way and never have to worry about money again?

Most people's strategy for winning the money game is to try and make a lot of money, hopefully save some of it, retire then spend the money they've saved finally enjoying life.

But there's a problem with this thinking. Have you ever read the story of the Golden Goose? Just in case you haven't or you don't remember it let me recount the story for you here. It's short and sweet and there's an awesome lesson to be learned. In fact, it could be “the” most important lesson when it comes to your financial world. Are you ready for a fairy tale that could change your life? Read on…

THE GOOSE AND THE GOLDEN EGG

There was once a Countryman who possessed the most wonderful Goose you can imagine, for every day when he visited the nest, the Goose had laid a beautiful, glittering, golden egg.

The Countryman took the eggs to market and soon began to get rich. But it was not long before he grew impatient with the Goose because she gave him only a single golden egg a day. He was not getting rich fast enough.

Then one day, after he had finished counting his money, the idea came to him that he could get all the golden eggs at once by killing the Goose and cutting it open. But when the deed was done, not a single golden egg did he find, and his precious Goose was dead.

This is where you wipe away your tears ☹.

The problem is that if you spend the money you’ve saved, you’ve killed your golden goose. That’s not winning money game, it’s playing Russian Roulette and betting that you’re going to die before your money runs out.

What happens if they come up with a pill that allows you to live for 25 more years? What happens if your medical bills are massive? What happens if your old age assisted living care costs you a fortune? What happens if you keep living and spending with no refills? Here's what happens; you go broke quickly! True or True?

Therefore, we need another alternative. Question: would you like the choice, what's the word? "choice", to be able to do what you want with your time without having to worry about working your ass off trying to earn a living?

Would you especially want that choice when you're 70 years old?

Would you like to have that choice decades sooner?

Bottom line, the essence of winning the money game is "CHOICE."

When it comes to money, choice comes from FINANCIAL FREEDOM.

What is a definition of Financial Freedom?

It's absolutely critical that you really get this. Memorize it. Write it 100 times. Anything to engrain this definition into your brain. Are you ready?

Financial Freedom is "The ability to live the lifestyle you desire without having to work or rely on anyone else for money."

As I said, this is hugely important so in the name of deeper learning, let's repeat that and read it again...

Financial Freedom is "The ability to live the lifestyle you desire without having to work or rely on anyone else for money."

Now let's make it personal. Best if you read this out loud.

Financial Freedom is "The ability to live the lifestyle I desire without having to work or rely on anyone else for money."

Well done!

So if you work, you work by choice not necessity. Make sense?

Ok. Would you agree that living your desired lifestyle is going to cost money?

Therefore, to be free you will need to earn money without working. Income without work is called what? Passive Income.

Please repeat this out loud; "I love passive income." So do I!

Therefore, the simple objective of the money game is to earn enough passive income to pay for the lifestyle you desire.

Meaning you become truly financially free when your passive income exceeds or is greater than your expenses.

So just as we did in the book, I'm going to invite you to do a DECLARATION to engrain this concept into your body, mind and soul.

As a reminder, a declaration is a statement we make out loud, remembering that everything is energy and that all energy is made up of frequencies and vibrations and that all energy affects all other energy. True or true?

When we make a positive statement out loud, that affects your energy positively. And that's a good thing. Yes or Yes?

Sure, I understand some of you may think this is really "strange" or "weird". Here's an analogy to help you reframe your opinion.

The fact is that most people think crappy, negative, non-supportive, fear-based thoughts most of the time. That's like eating junk food most of the time. So, might it be helpful to eat something healthy occasionally? Or would that be too "strange" and "weird"? Yes, it might be "different" but it might also be good for you and supportive to your life. Make sense?

So, in the name of deeper learning and stronger action; place your hand on your heart and say...

"I earn enough passive income to pay for the lifestyle I desire."

Now touch your head with your index finger and say...

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind!"

Good job!

WHAT'S YOUR "FOREVER FREE" NUMBER?

So now let's start moving toward the BIG question which is…

"How much money will YOU need to accumulate to be financially free"?

This is what I call, your "Forever Free" Number.

Sometimes I refer to it as your "magic" number. It's magic because as soon as you reach this number, abracadabra you are free. You never have to work again unless you choose to. Good or Good?

Knowing your Forever Free Number is one of the most important things you can ever know in life, especially your financial life.

Why? because it gives you a specific destination.

The problem with just saying, "I want to be financially free" is that it's too general.

Let's use a travel example. Let's say I was in Chicago, and I phoned United Airlines (assuming anybody ever actually calls anyone anymore) and said, "book me a ticket to Europe."

The first thing the agent would do is what? Hang up on you, right? As in "who is this crackpot?"

So you call back again and get the same representative and say, “Hey, why did you hang up on me? I want a ticket to Europe.” And once he or she realized you were serious what the next thing they would do? After they’re done laughing, they’d say, “There is no such thing as a ticket that says Europe on it. You have to be much more specific. Where exactly in Europe do you want to go?”

And you say, “Oh. I want to go to Italy.”

And the agent responds, “Ok. We still need you to be more specific. Where in Italy do you want to go?” And you reply, “I want to go to Rome.”

And finally, the agent breathes a sigh of relief and says, “Ok. Now I can help you.”

Are you catching my drift here?

Why is being specific so critical?

Have you heard of something called the Reticular Activator?

People have been teaching about this for many, many years. In fact, the system was first discovered in 1949 through experiments done by scientists Giuseppe Moruzzi and Horace Magoun.

The reticular activator is kind of an inner GPS guidance system we all have in our subconscious mind that leads you in the right direction.

Here's the most obvious example: Have you ever noticed that when you are thinking about buying a new car and considering a certain model or even a certain color, suddenly you become aware of that model or color of car everywhere? Or at least a lot more than you did before?

There's an energetic principle that states:

"What you focus on expands."

In this case, that model or color of car was always there, but now it's in your field of awareness so you just see more of it. Make sense?

Just like the airline rep, your reticular activator system (RAS) doesn't fully understand Europe but it does understand Rome. Meaning the more specific you can be the better your RAS guidance system works. Yes or Yes?

One more thing and this is super important.

Not only does being specific identify exactly where you want to go or in this case what you want, but it's necessary for determining your strategy for getting there.

This is particularly important with your Forever Free number. Different levels of wealth are going to take very different strategies to achieve. Yes or Yes?

The way you get to one level, say $500,000 will be radically different than the way you get to another, say, $10 million. And if you don't know your goal or destination or in this case your actual Forever Free amount, how will you know what strategy to use? Make sense?

Again, this Forever Free number is critical. We all should have learned this in the 6th grade because it's one of the most important things you can ever know in your life.

Are you ready to work on determining your Forever Free number? Great! Let's go!

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 1)

Question: Do want to live the way you want and have the lifestyle that that you truly want?

I hope you answered a hard yes to that last question because if you don't want to live the way you want, you automatically want to live the way you don't want. And that's the way most people live because they don't even know what they want.

Remember clarity leads to what? Power. Power is the ability to do. And you must "DO" to create what you want in the physical material world. And yes having the right mindset and the rest of the "inner world" principles are crucial but the end result that we're looking for is money! Real, physical money. Currency you can live on, spend, give and enjoy. Everyone understand?

So we are going do some exercises to make sure you are setting your sights in the right direction. We'll do this in stages. Getting more and more specific and clear about your Forever Free number as we go. Good or good?

HOW DO YOU WANT TO LIVE?

Let's begin with a simple exercise to clarify what it is that you really want. As in, how do you want to live your life, both now and in the future when you are able to stop working, if you choose to?

Normally in a seminar we would do this exercise as a visualization, and you are welcome to do that. The only challenge is that this is a written piece, so you need to have your eyes open to read it. Regardless of how you do it, the most important thing is that you do it! Are you ready?

Imagine your life as it is right now.

Regardless of your age, how fast has your life gone?
Would you say it's gone fast or slow?

Recall where you were or what you were doing maybe 10 years ago.
Doesn't that seem like it was almost yesterday?

Most people would answer that their life has flown by like the "blink of an eye." Would you agree?
Almost everyone I've ever met would agree that life goes fast.

And I can tell you with absolute certainty that the older you get the faster life seems to go. Entire years go by in a flash.

And before you know it, you're a senior. Maybe 60 or 70 or 80 years old if you're lucky enough to make it that far.

Now here's the thing to remember. You only get ONE life. How many lives? That's right, one!

And yes, some people believe they get more. Some cultures and religions believe they come back many times, but even in those cultures you don't come back to this life, do you? You come back to a completely different life and that's assuming you're still human. You could come back as a cow or an ant or a fish or a butterfly.

So regardless of your beliefs, you still only get one of THIS life. There's no do overs. When it's over, it's over.

Now you are going to make a very important decision.

You are going to choose your future lifestyle. That's right, your future lifestyle is a choice. It doesn't fall on your head. It's a conscious choice you are going to make or remake right now.

Most people never actually make this decision intentionally, but you are not most people. You are reading this material and that shows you are willing to learn and grow and that's half of the battle.

And sure, it's possible that right now you don't believe having the lifestyle you really, really, really want is feasible for you. Maybe you don't believe you can make it happen. Maybe you believe you don't deserve it or that you're not worthy. Maybe you have fears about trying and failing or even succeeding and what that might mean. I understand. That's why you've read or are reading your Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book; to let go of those non-supportive beliefs and replace them with more empowering ways of thinking. Yes or Yes?

But just for now I ask you to suspend these non-supportive beliefs. Just for now I want you to believe there are no obstacles and you can have pretty well any life you desire. For now, let's just let go of all the fears, all the "what ifs" and all the "how am I going to do this?" Come from a place of confidence and abundance. What would you want if you knew you could not fail?

Imagine you have discovered a magical lamp with a genie in it and the genie is now asking you exactly how you want to live.

Time to choose, knowing you can always change your mind.

Do you choose a low-class life full of scarcity where you are barely scraping by? Where you can't afford anything nice in your life. Where you drive a rusted car. You live in a rundown neighborhood. You live in an old home with crappy furniture.

Or maybe you live in a "tiny house" with 4 people. Sure, that's trendy and cool...until it isn't.

You take no vacations unless it's some time off at home. You can't afford to eat out unless it's splurging at McDonalds. And you feel lousy about yourself because you never lived up to your potential and not only you, but your family feels the brunt of it.

I'm not saying living this way is bad. The fact is that millions and millions of people live this way and that's totally ok. But hopefully you're not choosing to be one of them. And maybe you're living this way today, but that doesn't mean this has to be your tomorrow. Again, your life and your lifestyle are a choice. Is this broke lifestyle what you're asking your Genie for?

Ok then, if this bare bones lifestyle doesn't appeal to you, maybe you choose a middle class lifestyle? Where you get to be average. You're comfortable but you have to watch every dollar you spend. You live paycheck to paycheck. You're always worried that with any emergency you could end up broke. You get to drive an average car. You live in an average neighborhood. Your house is average. Maybe it's old and constantly needs repairs or maybe it's new but in a cookie-cutter suburb where every house looks about the same.

Yes, you get to travel but you do so on a very tight budget. Maybe once a year. And you probably have to drive because airplane tickets cost too much. And if you do fly, you and your family sit in the back of the plane, in coach and get served peanuts if you're lucky. Oh, I forgot, no more peanuts on planes. Allergies and potential lawsuits abound so peanuts are gone. Now you get pretzels! Yay! You mostly eat at home but even the grocery bills make you nervous. And maybe you do get to eat out sometimes but it's at lower priced restaurants with blah tasting food.

Again, millions of people choose this middle-class lifestyle. And there's nothing wrong with it if that's what you want your one and only life to be like. Average, comfortable, just getting by, but never reaching your full potential and seldom able to enjoy the "finer" things life has to offer. Is this what you are asking your Genie to give you? An average, middle-class life? Again, you have a choice. Again, your life and your lifestyle doesn't fall on your head. You choose it.

Or maybe you've had it. Maybe you are done living in scarcity and fear. Maybe you are done just being comfortable and average. Maybe you're tired of watching or reading about other people living an abundant, first class, affluent life and wondering why that can't be you and your family. Maybe you're done with thinking small and living small. Maybe you are ready to live into your true potential and tell your magical Genie what you truly want without fear and without any conjuring up any obstacles.

So now you get a fresh start. You get to choose or re-choose how you want to live your one and only life. A life where you've got an abundance of money. A life of security and freedom. A life knowing that a lack of money doesn't rule your decisions anymore. A life where you get to focus on just enjoying yourself and the best that life has to offer.

Now it’s time to make your choice. And again, just for now I’m asking you to suspend all fears or doubts. Just for now, suspend all negative beliefs about money or yourself or others? Just for now, because as you will learn or have learned from the book, all those beliefs are “made up” and you can and will “remake them up” but this time your new thought patterns will support you in living the life you really want. Good or Good?

So, choose. Tell your Genie what you really want. Do you want your one life to be low class? Impoverished? Full of scarcity? Full of fear? Always broke or close to it.

Do want your one life to be middle class? Average. Semi-comfortable. Getting by but again always worried money and the future?

Or do you want your one life to be affluent; where you feel confident, secure, abundant and at peace because you are not only financially free, but free with a first-class lifestyle and maybe even RICH?

It’s up to you. I repeat. It’s up to you. It doesn’t matter where you are in your life now or what you chose before. This is your opportunity to choose again.

Your choice will indicate how you really feel about yourself. It will represent what you feel you deserve in life. So, if it isn’t very much you may want to reconsider that this old story and these old beliefs are now holding you back from living your best one life.

My friends, this is your chance to make a change. What do you have to lose by going for an affluent life? Again, what would you want if you knew you could not fail?

Do you choose the low-end life? The middle-class life? Or the first-class, even rich life?

From my experience, my guess is that most of you chose the first-class life because you are reading this material and interested in the MULTI-millionaire mind.

Now put your hand on your heart and say,

"I choose to have a first class, wealthy life"

Now touch your head with your index finger and say...

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind!"

Good job!

And to those of you who only chose the middle or low-class life I say, WTF! I mean this was all just imaginary and you still wouldn't allow yourself to have a first-class, abundant life? To me that means there is a huge challenge with the way you think. And my guess is that you have not read or have not completed your Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book. So please read every word and reread it again and again. Because it's like you just got an opportunity to win twenty million dollars in the lottery and you ripped up your winning ticket. So, we really need to work on your thinking process. And that's what we are here to do. Good or Good?

In that exercise you got to live the lifestyle you wanted, but only in your head right? And that's fine because that's stage one. Everything starts in your head, with a thought, an idea, an intention, a command to your subconscious, your reticular activator, to guide you to your destination.

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 2)

Ok, this exercise was a great start in choosing the kind of lifestyle you want in general. Next, we will want to get more specific not only in what you want but also how much that lifestyle is going to cost. Why? Because the goal is to determine your Forever Free number, and to do that you need to know how much money you're going to need to accumulate, and to do that you're going to need to know how much your lifestyle is going to cost. Make sense?

In the "live" Millionaire Mind Intensive workshop setting you get to create your own exact list of what you want and what it's going to cost. But since we're not in that experiential setting right now, I'll make it easy by giving you a real-life example of someone I know very well—their lifestyle, what it costs and from there you can get a rough idea of the cost of your own lifestyle. If you want what they have, their cost is approximately what your life will cost. If you want more, you'll have to add more. If you want less, your cost will be less. It's up to you.

I believe this example or case study is going to be very enlightening, unless of course you are already really rich and, in that case, you'll probably just think, "Yup, that's about right."

In my experience, meeting all kinds of people and with over a million students, I would say that most people have no clue as to how the rich, or at least those who are very affluent, actually live and what it actually costs them. So, this knowledge should both be very informative and very exciting as the lifestyle I'm about to show you is an incredibly wonderful way to live. Again, that's my experience. And yours can differ a little or a lot. The point is that once again, you have choice. A choice to live how you really want to live both now and in the future. Awesome or More Awesome?

Yet isn't it true that how you want to live often changes during your lifetime? Meaning you might be perfectly fine living in a small apartment with roommates in your 20's but then maybe you get married and have a family. Well guess what? The small apartment doesn't cut it anymore. You're going to need something bigger and better and substantially more expensive.

And maybe in your 40's you become tired of living just decently because you still can't afford the things and activities you really want and so your desire for more income and wealth becomes greater.

And in your 50's hopefully things are going quite well and you see how other affluent people live and want that for yourself and your family and so you will want and need even more income and wealth to do that.

And in your 60's you're hopefully financially free but the question is "free at what level?"

As you can see, things tend to change as you go through life and that's totally normal. As you read this example of an affluent lifestyle just know that even if it doesn't quite interest you now, it certainly might later on. Fair enough?

One more caveat. I'm going to write this in a manner that's more conversational as if this person is speaking to us and telling us what they own and what their lifestyle is like. This way it makes it even easier for you to visualize putting yourself in their place.

And because this is a real life example, I'm going to change the name and a few details for the purpose of confidentiality.

So if you're ready, buckle up and let's goooooo!

A Real Example of a First-Class Life

Hi, my name is Robert Dale and I am more than grateful to live a first class lifestyle. I'd like to tell you a little about it so you can decide for yourself if this feels right for you and your family. I hope so because it's even more amazing than I ever dreamed it could be. But I will say from the outset that this lifestyle and the money it takes to create it, didn't fall on my head. I did not inherit a dime. I had to work hard to make it. That's not a bad thing because I fully enjoyed my work and the journey. Plus, I made sure that I invested wisely so my money could work for me as well. All I can say is that it was worth it "millions and millions" of times over. So here is how my family and I live.

HOMES:

As I mentioned, I came from humble beginnings. My brother and I shared a small room in a little house until I was in my early teens. It was cramped to say the least so I always dreamed that someday I would live in a mansion and have my very own massive room. Because of that, my home or homes mean a lot to me.

So now I have a gorgeous 8000 square foot main home in one of the best neighborhoods in Los Angeles, California.

I also have a beautiful condo with a stunning ocean view steps from the beach in Hawaii.

In addition, I have a 4-building compound that sleeps close to 20 people directly on the golf course with a stunning view of the mountains in Lake Tahoe. I love that we can have the entire family; our kids and all our grandkids and even nephews and nieces come from all over the country, and we can all be together in one place. It's a true joy to be able to house everyone in luxury. They love, love, love it and they very much appreciate it, and so do I.

VEHICLES:

I'm not a car buff, but I do enjoy driving high-end vehicles. I mean why not? I've got the money to buy any car I want so I do. I'm particularly fond of Porsche and my wife loves Mercedes.

At my main home in L.A. I have a customized black and red Turbo Porsche Macan and my wife drives a gorgeous white Mercedes SL 550 convertible.

My two kids share a Jeep, which they of course fight over—but it usually works out, because, if necessary, I let them borrow my Porsche, and that settles any disputes. Well not really because then they fight over the Porsche. ☺ We call these "champagne" problems, and we all just laugh.

At my Hawaii home I keep another Porsche, and my wife of course has a Mercedes SUV. To be honest, each of these cars is a little overkill for Hawaii beach parking, but whatever. I get both cars detailed every week so we don't worry about it.

At my mountain home I only have one car that my wife and I share. It's a 20-year-old Porsche Cayenne, but it has sentimental value to me, and I think of it as a "classic". Whenever valet parks the car, they always comment about how much nicer this car looks than the new ones. I agree, which is partly why I still own it. Having said that, this summer we will be buying a new car because my wife wants to have all latest gadgets and cameras, etc. I agreed, but only on the condition that we keep the Porsche as well so the kids can drive it when they visit.

Our home in Tahoe is only 15 minutes from one of the most scenic lakes in all of America. To take full advantage of that, I have a beautiful boat that my wife bought me for my birthday! (Best present ever!) It's not the biggest boat in the marina, there are several huge ones, but it's super smooth and seats 10 comfortably. We love taking it out on the lake and bringing friends and family. We used to dock at restaurants for lunch, but that just took time away from being on the water so now we bring a picnic, anchor in a stunning bay with majestic mountains all around us, throw the floaty chairs into the water and chill in the sun listening to our favorite tunes.

Being on the lake is mine and my wife's happy place. And again, I just love having our friends and family join us and being able treat them to such a special experience. To me one of the biggest perks of wealth is being able to share our good fortune with those we love. I would say that virtually all the wealthy friends I know feel the same way. It's all about sharing the fruits of our success.

To that end I also have 2 sea-doos as well as all the latest wake surf and water ski equipment. It all makes for super fun lake time every week, especially for the kids.

Speaking of vehicles, last but not least, I used to own my own jet, but I wasn't using it enough to warrant the expense. Now I bought into a fractional jet membership. Yes, it's still expensive but I've got to tell you, there's no more special feeling than boarding a private jet with just you and your family or friends. And of course, the pilots. As well as the flight attendant who believe it or not actually cooks our meal to perfection right in the galley.

Every dish is personalized. It's the best. Again, you might think flying private is overkill, but there's a saying us rich folks have;

"If you don't fly private, your kids will!"

There'll be plenty left for them when I'm gone so I figure we might as well get the most out of our lives right now.

TRAVEL:

I usually go on 2 or 3 super high-end trips a year. One just my wife and I as a couple, and the others with friends or family. We just got back from a golf trip to New Zealand. Amazing! I'm planning trips for next year to Tuscany, Italy and going on another Safari, this time to Kenya and Tanzania. I'm also just ironing out the details to book a Four Season's Yacht cruise. That will make it 3 vacations this year but who's counting! I love to travel because there's so much to learn and it allows for pure uninterrupted time with my loved ones.

I mentioned being with my kids, but one of my favorite things to do was to bring my parents on trips with us or send them on cruises on their own. Financially they did ok but never had the money nor would they ever allow themselves to do first-class things so I'm grateful for the wherewithal to be able to do that for them. And even though they get upset with me for "spending a fortune on them" I just laugh and say, "It's my pleasure. Enjoy it."… and they certainly do.

If we fly in North America, we usually fly private. If it's somewhere else in the world we fly first class, of course.

You might notice that I use the word "trips" instead of "vacation". I feel like I'm always on vacation because every day I do what people on vacation would do, so we go on amazing "trips". My hope is that someday soon you are in the same position.

EATING OUT AND EATING IN:

Neither my wife nor I like to cook (maybe because we're not very good at it) so we eat out at high-end restaurants at least twice a week, wherever we are. It's so awesome to be pampered at these establishments. The managers all know our name and treat us like royalty. They should considering how much we spend and how much we tip.

Talk about tipping; I enjoy being overly generous with my gratuities because I know these servers and kitchen staff are working hard and many of them have families to take care of and feed. I don't mean to be "judgy", but I'd prefer to support those who are working and at least "trying" to get ahead than those who are fully able to work but choose to stay home and watch tv while collecting government funds, which I pay for through my exorbitant taxes. Sorry, just had to throw that in.

Back to eating and food; we also have a private chef that brings over 2 healthy gourmet meals a week. One of my favorite things is choosing exactly what dishes she's going to make for us. Again, not cheap but less expensive than the restaurants we frequent, and often even better!

As for the other evenings, we usually eat "leftovers", which are awesome because each time we eat at a restaurant we also order additional full meals and just package them up to go.

Based on what I've shared above, it appears that we spend a small fortune on food. True that, but so what. This is what I worked for, saved for, and invested for, and my family and I are enjoying the fruits of my labor. All I can say is, YUM!

And sure, some of my friends are amazing cooks and love to prepare meals to eat at home. I love that for them or for you. But that's just not me and my crew. So yes, we eat out a lot and it's awesome!

COUNTRY CLUBS:

I belong to 3 first class country clubs. One in each location where I live. I know it sounds a bit egotistical, but I do enjoy the fact that every staff member knows and calls me by my name. It's nice to feel important and to the naysayers I would simply say, "Don't knock it until you've tried it!"

At my clubs my wife and I play golf on perfectly manicured courses. My wife also plays pickleball with her girlfriends. We have a ton of fun being in the bocce ball league. It's a hoot with teams all wearing special t-shirts emblazoned with their team names. The names are hilarious and since there's no kids around, some of them are kind of X-rated! It's all in good fun, and the hors d'oeuvres and drinks they serve are first class.

Other than that, I enjoy working out at the club's fully loaded fitness center. I weight train and do yoga there 3 times a week. My favorite though is going to the decked-out spa and doing the steam, sauna and cold plunge. Plus, my wife and I each get 2-hour massages at least once a week. When my adult kids come to visit, we treat them all to massages as well. Again, we earned it, we've got it, and we use it! More on that in moment.

ENTERTAINMENT:

My wife and I are both live music lovers, so we enjoy going to concerts and festivals. We usually go to about 5 or so major concerts a year. I'm not the tallest and neither is my wife so that's our excuse for having to sit in the front one or two rows and if we can't get one of the best seats in the house we just don't go. Trust me, you can get pretty well any seat in any house if you're willing to pay enough... and thankfully we are.

We just had VIP front row tickets to see the Eagles in concert. It was not only VIP, it was the Platinum option with a limo to and from our hotel and the event, plus dinner and drinks beforehand. There wasn't any "meet the band" option at this event, but usually we buy that too. In short, whatever the very best and most expensive option is, is what I tell my assistant to buy.

I’ve been to Burning Man and this year we’re also going to the Coachella festival. I’m excited because it will be my first time. And of course, we’ve got top tier tickets with backstage passes and most importantly, private, upgraded, luxury bathrooms. My wife is a clean freak so she’s a stickler for that!

Oh, and let’s not forget the Super Bowl. I don’t go to the game every year, but I do attend when my favorite teams are playing. The Super Bowl is definitely one of the more expensive events we attend because again, we sit in some of the best seats in the entire stadium.

My wife and I also love going to several other events as well.

Each year we either attend the Masters golf tournament or the Formula 1 Grand Prix car race. The last one we went to was in Monaco. When we got back everyone asked us how it was. I only had one word to say; LOUD!!!! And yes, it was also a fantastic experience.

HEALTH AND FITNESS:

My wife and I are big into health and fitness. We each have our own personal fitness trainers twice a week. We also have a personal pilates trainer that works out with us 3 times a week in our own home gym on our own pilates machine. We love pilates. We both believe it’s the most “bang for the buck”.

As I mentioned, I go to yoga classes as well as having my own private yoga instructor that comes to the house once a week. We practice outside on my deck breathing in the wonderful aromas of nature with the most amazing views.

And yes, I do meditate. I've been meditating for over 30 years. Game changer. I started this practice after a life altering trip to India, getting to meet and converse with several gurus who I believe to be truly enlightened. It was an honor to learn from them. I don't want to talk about money all the time, but how do you think I got to meet these gurus who have tens of thousands of followers who would all LOVE to meet their idol but never will. The answer of course is.... money! I donated a ton of money to their ashram or their cause and with it somehow came a wonderful invitation to meet the guru. It's kind of unfortunate, but like it or not, that is the world we live in. Having said that, once these gurus and I were together no discussion of money ever came up again. It was a truly a mind-expanding, heart-opening experience.

As I mentioned, my wife and I each get 2-hour massages once a week. I know it seems a bit luxurious, but I always think about comedian Bob Hope. He was famous for getting a massage every day from his own personal masseuse who not only lived with him but also traveled with him. Bob Hope lived to over 100 years old and swore his secret to longevity was his daily massages. Sold. Once again, I can afford it so why not?

It's not a ton of money, but I do spend quite a bit each month on additional healing modalities like red light therapy and oxygen chambers and acupuncture and the latest and greatest supplements. I don't know if you've ever tried any of these modalities but they're not cheap.

I feel very fortunate to be able to afford the best care for my health. And that includes having a concierge doctor. My guess is that a lot of people aren't familiar with the term concierge doctor. It means that you have a top tier doctor who can usually see you within 24 hours or who will call you back within 2 hours or sometimes, if necessary, will even come to your home! In short, if you have a concierge doctor you go to the front of the line. They can also usually get you in to see specialist doctors almost right away—ones who would normally be impossible to see without waiting for months.

EDUCATION:

I am also big into education. At this point, my learning mostly involves personal and spiritual growth. In the past it was that plus a lot of programs and courses in the area of business and finance. I usually go to at least 2 seminar retreats a year. The programs I attend are some of the best in the world and aren't inexpensive. They often run thousands or tens of thousands of dollars plus travel, accommodations and food.

In addition, my wife and I have a coach/therapist we work with. Each of us has our own sessions twice a month as well as a couple's session once a month. It's been very helpful, and it keeps us on track. I'm grateful I have the funds to work with some of the best coaches in the country.

CONTRIBUTION:

Last but not least is what I'll call "giving" or "contribution." We are involved in and contribute to several charity organizations. Some of these are for medical research. Others are for hospital equipment and specialized doctors. And still other charities help the poor in the US as well as other countries.

When I didn't have a lot of money I wanted to help others and did so in whatever way I could, but now I'm able to help to a much greater extent. It's so funny to me that the masses are taught to believe that rich people are greedy and to be honest, I was programmed to believe that too, but once I became wealthy and started to hang with rich people that belief went out the window because I got to see with my own eyes how much time, energy and money these people spend on helping others.

In fact, I would venture to say that virtually every rich person or couple I know either heads one or more charities, or donates to several charities again and again and again. To that end, this weekend I'll be playing in an annual children's hospital charity golf event. It's $5000 to play and then there's a dinner where the "real" money starts to flow. It's not uncommon for participants to donate $20,000, $50,000, $100,000 and even $100,000 a month for the next 12 months! Greedy? My hope and expectation is that when you become truly affluent you will contribute to others as well. It's a wonderful feeling to know you are making a real difference in people's lives.

So, this is my current lifestyle. I'm not fully retired even though I could be, but I like to do projects that keep me busy as well as keep close tabs on my investments. It might be interesting to note that I became fully financially free 15 years ago and never had to work again. Fairly young by most people's standards. I achieved this financial position by creating and then selling 3 highly successful businesses. And then investing those funds intelligently to earn even more money.

BACK TO HARV:

Ok, so that's Robert's story. Now let me ask you a simple question. Let's put money aside for a moment, do you think you might want a lifestyle similar to Robert? In general, does Robert's lifestyle or parts of it sound appealing to you? It does to me and my guess is that most people would kill for a life that looked like his. It's what many people dream of. True or True?

HOW MUCH WILL THIS LIFESTYLE COST?

Using Robert's lifestyle as a basic model from which we can add to or deduct from, would you like to know how much that kind of lifestyle costs? Again, we are doing this to help determine how much money we are going to need to live the lifestyle we want. Does that make sense?

We are going to divide these costs into 2 categories. One is assets and the other is expenses. You'll see why in a moment.

So let's itemize Robbie's lifestyle:

ASSETS AND ONE TIME COSTS:

Los Angeles Home including furniture – $6M
Hawaii Oceanfront Condo including furniture – $8M
Mountain Home including furniture – $7M
Porsche Macan – $150K
Mercedes SL550 – $180K
Jeep – $70K
Porsche Cayenne – $80K
Mercedes SUV – $100K
Boat – $500K
2 Sea-doos – $60K
3 Country Club Initiations – $250K x 3 = $750K

TOTAL:

Value of Homes: $21M

Value of Vehicles and Club initiations: $1,890,000. Let's round up to $2 million just to be safe. Fair enough?

ONGOING ANNUAL EXPENSES:

Next, we are going to list Robert's annual expenses based on what he owns as well as his activities: In short, how much does his lifestyle cost per year. Are you ready for some sticker shock? Here we go.

Homes, Cars and Boats:
3 Homes (Los Angeles, Ocean condo, Mountain) – property taxes, HOA, insurance, landscaping, pool, club dues, misc. = $150K each home x3 = $450K
5 Cars (Macan, Cayenne, Mercedes SL550, Mercedes SUV, Jeep) – gas, insurance, repairs = $7K each car x5 = 35k
Boat/2 sea-doos – storage, gas, insurance, repairs = $25K
Total: $510K/yr

Vacations:
Vacation 1 ie. Italy – 2 people including flights, hotel, food, tours etc. = $60K
Vacation 2 ie. Africa – family of 6, including flights, hotel, food, tours etc. = $120K.

For ease, and to make this more palatable, let's just round it way, way, way down to $1,000,000 +++ a year. Ok?

That's right, Robert's expenses alone are well, well, well over.... a million dollars a year!

Roberts personal assets, his homes and vehicles alone are worth close to 23 million dollars!

Now chances are you might think that Robert's lifestyle is insane, extreme, outrageous and that only a few people in the world actually live this way.

Let me share with you something that may blow your mind. Robert's lifestyle and the expenses that go with it are not, I repeat, not over the top at all. I can tell you that I personally know at least 100 friends and close acquaintances that live in a very similar fashion and their expenses are also very similar. Some a bit less and some a lot, lot, lot more. I can also tell you that Robert is rich, but not uber rich. And that Robert's lifestyle is not, I repeat, not an uber rich lifestyle. It's actually quite the norm for tens if not hundreds of thousands of affluent people. And my intention is for you to be one of those people too. Good or good?

This is my friend Robert's life. And this is what his life costs. But of course, by no means is this the only lifestyle you can enjoy once you have the money. You have "millions" (excuse the pun) of options, if, I repeat, if you have the money!

Robbie has 3 homes. Maybe you'd prefer only 2 so you can be at each more often. Personally I went from 3 homes to 2 for that very reason, but recently went back to 3 just because I wanted one that was closer to my kids. I have another wealthy friend who only has 1 home and that's all he wants. He and his wife are constantly traveling all around the world, so he doesn't need more than 1.

Also note the Robbie's homes are top of the line and in some of the best and most expensive places in the country. Robbie's condo is pretty well on the beach in Hawaii. Hawaii is expensive and being on the beach is crazy expensive, but it's incredible. Your vacation condo, if you have one, might be in a part of Mexico that is a quarter of Rob's price. You may or may not want to do any of this, but wouldn't you at least want the choice?

Robert has a membership with a private plane company. You may choose to pass on having a private plane membership. Alternatively, you may really want to own your own plane. Remember the saying I mentioned earlier that rich people have, "If you don't fly private, your kids will." True that! And the good news is that if you have enough money both you and your kids can fly private... for life! Wouldn’t that be awesome?

Either way, if you’re going to lead a “first-class” lifestyle you will still want to sit in “first class” whenever you fly. In my experience first class is usually between three and five times the cost of a coach ticket. And we’re not talking about getting upgraded because that’s a crapshoot and personally I can tell you that there is no way I am sitting in coach. If I’m flying commercial I buy and pay full fare for our guaranteed first class seats. I’m not disparaging people who sit in coach, I’m just saying it’s not for me (anymore). And my guess is once you are used to sitting in first class you won’t want to sit in the back anymore either. And I love the folks who say with a smirk, “Why would I pay for first class when everyone gets there at the same time?” (and they kinda laugh). To me the better question is why “wouldn’t” they? And the obvious answer is, because they don’t have a sh*tload of disposable money. That’s not me and that’s not going to be you. True or true? Again, wouldn’t you want the choice?

Robert has a beautiful but comparatively modest boat. I have friends who have boats 3 times the size and 5 times the cost.

I have one friend who has 3 homes and 3 boats. His lake boat cost him $600,000 and his 2 ocean-going vessels cost him $1.2M for one and $3M for the other because he takes it from his home in Ft. Lauderdale, FL to his other home in the Bahamas. It’s a much bigger and a more expensive vessel because the open seas can get fairly rough. And then again you may not even choose to own a boat.

On the exact opposite spectrum, I have another friend who loves both kayaking and stand-up paddle boarding. She is very rich but doesn't care to own a boat, just her top-of-the-line kayak and paddle board. Total cost for both is about $6,000. Not much in comparison, right? Right, but she kayaks and paddles all over the world in some of the most scenic places on the planet. She just got back from kayaking with a private guide in Antarctica. Nice or Nice? I can tell you that her travel (first class of course) runs into hundreds of thousands a year. You may or may not do any of this. Again, it's up to you, but wouldn't you at least want the choice?

Rob and his wife eat out a lot. And they eat at the most expensive restaurants wherever they are. As he explained, they also have a private chef that prepares meals for them. You on the other hand may love to cook. In that case, you wouldn't have nearly that expense. But again, I have a friend who loves to cook and because he is rich he goes to some of the best and most expensive cooking classes in the world to be even better at it. We had dinner with him and his wife the other night and they had just returned from France working with one of the top chefs in Paris for 3 weeks. The cost? Close to $150,000. Again, you may or may not want to do any of this, but wouldn't you want the choice?

As you read, Rob likes to not only belong to country clubs but live right inside the gates. Of course, belonging to country clubs isn't for everyone. Some people wouldn't be caught dead in a country club but personally my wife and I only live in country clubs and we love it. We love the safety of being behind the manned and shall I add, “armed” security gates. We enjoy having the best of the best PRIVATE wellness, sports and dining amenities conveniently at our fingertips. And we appreciate how easy it is to meet people, and not just any peeps, but like-minded folks who have also been successful and are enjoying the fruits of their labors. So we usually have a lot in common.

Again, country clubs aren’t for everybody. But chances are you’ll still want to live in one of the most beautiful and safest neighborhoods in your city or town and depending on where that is that could cost a lot, an awful lot, especially if you live in a popular place.

Robbie and his wife love going to concerts and events. They only sit in the center section in the front row or close to it. Maybe you don’t enjoy shows like that. Maybe you have little interest in attending the Super Bowl or the Masters or a Formula 1 race. All good. This is Robert’s life for you to review and pick and choose from or not. You do you, but again, maybe you want the choice. Yes or Yes?

Rob and his wife workout and each has a personal trainer every day. Maybe you want that. Maybe you don’t, but again my own experience is that when I have an appointment with my trainer, I show up and I workout. When I plan on working out on my own, sometimes I do and sometimes I don’t. So I’m a big believer in having a personal trainer not only for the training itself, but because it forces me to do my workouts. My wife is the same. So maybe you spring for a personal trainer everyday or twice a week or not at all. Up to you... if you have the money. If you don't have the funds then it's not up to you because you have no choice. That's the point of all of this. The ability to have lifestyle choices. Yes or Yes?

And speaking of training, Robbie goes to at least a couple of educational type retreats a year and he and his wife utilize a coach/therapist every week. Is this something you would find helpful? Maybe yes. Maybe no. Up to you. Your choice if… (you know what I'm going to say here)... if you have the money. True or True?

Robbie's kids have already completed college. His daughter went to one of the best schools in the America and his son attended the best university in England. Growing up they mostly went to private schools. That was a huge expense for many, many years. You may or may not have kids in that stage of life. If so, you may have to add school expenses into your lifestyle.

Again, private school even for a young kid is probably close to $40,000 or even $50,000 a year per child right now. And going to a top ranked college can easily be $60,000 to $120,000 a year. Or maybe you are fortunate, and your kid can get an all-expense paid scholarship. I wouldn't count on it, but it would sure be nice. Or you can send your kids to community college and have them get a job and pay for it themselves. Again, it's up to who? That's right. You!

The beautiful thing is that your lifestyle, how you want to live, is totally and completely your choice if, and this is the biggest if for everyone, if.... (here we go again) ...if you have the money to pay for it.

In my experience, most people would love to live a first-class, affluent, even wealthy lifestyle. But the reality is that they never will because they will never be able to afford it. So, what separates those who will end up living an affluent life and those who don't? Let's find out!

4 KEYS TO WEALTH

There are 4 critical keys to wealth. Would you like to learn them? Are you sure? Ok. Let's do this!

1. CLEAR AND RIGHT INTENTION

That is what this material is all about. Making sure you are choosing the appropriate financial target for yourself and setting your Reticular Activator GPS system in the right direction.

Once again, the first reason most people don't get what they want is because they don't know WHAT they want.

And the second reason they don't get what they want is because they don't know WHY they want it. Which in a moment will lead us to the next factor.

Meanwhile, let's do a declaration together to engrain this first concept.

Please put your hand on your heart so you can feel this vibration and repeat (out loud is best) …

What I want is to become a multi-millionaire.

Again...

What I want is to become a multi-millionaire.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say,

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind"

Good work!

2. STRONG MOTOR (MOTIVATION)

Willing to do whatever it takes. To be super successful, you have to be a warrior. And I'll add an "enlightened warrior". The definition we use is "one who conquers oneself". Meaning you must learn to master your mind. In case you haven't figured it out by now, your mind is the key to your life.

The number one difference between those who succeed and those who don't is the way they "think."

A reminder from your Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book is the formula for manifestation:

T-F-A=R

Thoughts, lead to Feelings, which leads to Actions, which leads to Results.

It all starts where? Your thoughts. Your mind. And either you master it or it masters you. I don't think I have to tell you that if your mind masters you, you're in big trouble. Because your mind has a naturally negative, fear-based bias. If you keep listening to it you will end up both unsuccessful and unhappy.

Again, you must be willing to do whatever it takes to succeed. It doesn't mean the journey is always tough, but it can be, and you have to be willing to do what it takes when the going does get tough.

My friends, getting rich is not a stroll in the park. If it was easy, everyone would be wealthy, but they're not. And again, one of the main reasons is that they are not willing to do whatever, and I mean, whatever it takes, as long as you're not hurting others, of course.

There's a great saying I use in my seminars that I got from an author friend of mine named Robert Kiyosaki. Robert wrote a huge bestseller called Rich Dad Poor Dad. Here it is:

"If you're only willing to do what's easy, life will be hard but if you're willing to do what's hard, life will be easy."

There's another saying on this topic that I also love and use. To be transparent, I'm not exactly sure who said it first, but I didn't make it up (although it's often attributed to me) so I guess I said it second. Does that count for something? (Probably not). Anyway, here goes:

"If you will do what most people won't do for the next few years, you can do what most people can't do for the rest of your life."
– T. Harv Eker (said it second)

At the Millionaire Mind Intensive Seminar students often say that it sounds like getting rich or becoming affluent is just too hard. And you know what my response is? "If you think getting rich is hard, try being broke!" To me, that's hard.

Ok one last thing I have to mention here. Working hard doesn't mean that you are dreading every minute of the day. To the contrary, most people I know who get rich love, love, love what they do. They enjoy their work and so working a lot or handling problems as they come up isn't a big deal to them. When I say working hard I mean putting in a lot of effort, and a lot of energy. That doesn't mean struggle.

"Struggle is effort laced with negative emotion."

Meaning you are the one that makes your effort a positive or negative experience. In fact, you are the one who makes EVERYTHING a positive or negative experience.

If you want to go deeper into this, you might consider our complimentary Wealth Class called The Shocking Truth About Happiness. Or not. Up to you.

Let's make this factor stronger with another declaration.
Please put your hand on your heart and repeat (out loud is best)…

I am willing to do whatever it takes.

Again…

I am willing to do whatever it takes.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind"

Nice work!

3. WILLING TO CONTINUE TO LEARN

There's a wonderful saying;

"If you're not growing you're dying".

Look at anything in nature. And remember we are part of nature. Look at any plant. If it's not growing, what's it doing? Dying! True or True?

To me, the best way to continue to grow is to continue to learn. Nobody comes out of the womb being astute with business and money and the mindset to support wealth. Those are totally learnable skills. That's why I teach what I teach.

Remember I had a very rough time in my life for over a decade, where I was trying my best to make it but was constantly broke. But once I started learning from others as well as from my own experiences and more importantly, putting what I learned into practice, my life, both financially and personally began to turn around. And once I got rich, I felt from that I needed to pass along what worked and has continued to work for me.

The good news is that the knowledge you need to succeed at the highest level is readily available to you, weather it's through my programs or someone else who is legit. Unfortunately, in today's world that's like trying to find a needle in a haystack. There are thousands of so called "teachers or coaches" out there who have never "made it" themselves. They might have good intentions but all they can teach you is what got them to where they are and if they're not doing well themselves then that's all you can learn; how to NOT do well. Or even more unfortunately, there are the scammers. All they know is how to "sell." Nothing wrong with selling but to me there is plenty wrong with selling garbage. True or True?

So again, continuous learning is essential. In fact, it's part of what I call the Guaranteed Success Formula. Would you like to learn this too? I sure hope so...

Learn. Do. Learn. Do. Learn. Do. (repeat as long as necessary) and Never Give Up.
– T. Harv Eker

You learn something. You put it into practice. You learn something else. You put it into practice. And you keep doing this for 3, 5, 10, 20 years. In the end you will absolutely have to succeed as long as you...NEVER GIVE UP. Make sense?

Let's do a declaration together to engrain this key.

Please put your hand on your heart and repeat (out loud is best)…

I choose to continuously learn.

Again…

I choose to continuously learn.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind"

Well done!

4. LUCK

Very few teachers mention this. But in conversations with my wealthy friends, the word "lucky" comes more than often. I'm not saying that you can just do nothing, and luck will make you rich. Unfortunately, it doesn't seem to work that way. There's a saying;

"The harder and smarter I work, the luckier I get."

Would you agree? That's been my experience. You have to do your part and sometimes the universe will smile down on you and give you a gift that even you weren't expecting.

It's hard to explain but timing has a lot to do with it. I had no idea my mountain house would double in value in 3 years. I bought it for myself and my family to enjoy. Who knew Covid would hit and mountain towns would become safe havens often called "Zoomtowns", and that the demand for homes there would far outstrip the supply, and that homes at least in my area would double or more? I didn't know that but what I did do is "buy" that property. I took that initial action. Had I not done my part of it, obviously I would not be able to enjoy a close to $10 million profit on that house. (Yes, you read that number right!)

I have a friend that owns over 100 homes in the Phoenix area. He bought them all as cash flow investments and it took him more than 10 years to accumulate. He believed these homes would be good for cash flow and maybe appreciate 3% to 5% a year which is what they'd been doing in the past. He bought in Phoenix because he felt it was an up-and-coming area, but he never expected that the Phoenix area would become a hotbed for dozens of major companies to relocate and produce thousands of high paying jobs. He never dreamed that his houses would appreciate by over 100% in just a few years. When you talk to him he calls it "straight up luck". Being in the right place at the right time. But what was the first step? He took the action of buying homes and continued to buy home after home after home for over a decade, and then luck came his way. Make sense?

As I've mentioned, I made my first million, many years ago, by opening and then selling a chain of retail fitness stores. But as the story goes, I never started out with the idea of opening a fitness store. Originally I was going to open an "aerobics studio." (I told you it was many years ago. Can you picture me with a big ass mustache, high hair, over-the-calf white socks and a headband? No? Neither can I! Ha Ha.) Anyway, as I was looking for space to rent the realtors or landlords would consistently say, "Oh are you with so and so who is looking to open an aerobic studio?" In one week I heard about 4 different people or companies intending on opening the same thing I was.

Finally, I thought to myself, "Yeesh, everyone wants to open one of these. I've got major competition before even starting. I'm not sure this is the best idea." So I let the idea of opening an aerobics studio evaporate into the ethers. I still wanted to be in the fitness business and ended up opening the world's first chain of home exercise equipment stores.

Of course there's a major backstory that goes along with this, but I believe it was just luck, I repeat, luck that I happened to be looking to open the aerobics studios at the very same time 4 others were looking to do the same thing in the same area and looking at the exact same spaces. Had I been looking even 1 month earlier I wouldn't have known about the others. I probably would have opened a studio and ended up on the scrap heap like most of the other aerobics studios that did open because the fitness gyms started offering 5 aerobic classes a day, plus you got to use all the other equipment. So the competition for aerobic classes became stiff.

In short, it was sheer luck that I ended up opening the world's first chain of retail fitness stores instead of an aerobics studio. And it was shear luck the President of H.J. Heinz happened to walk into one of my stores one day, was seriously impressed, told his Merger and Acquisitions director to come check it out and a few months later I sold the business to them and made my first of many millions.

Here's one more example. And yes, I know I'm giving this luck thing a little extra time, but there's a major lesson in all this.

It's comes from the sports world. Football to be exact. It's January 2025. The Philadelphia Eagles are playing the Green Bay Packers in a playoff game. The camera cuts to one of the Eagles main offensive players, A.J. Brown, sitting on the bench while the defense is on the field and he is reading a book. That's kind of unheard of in the middle of a football game. Afterwards when asked about it, Brown said he always brings this book to the games and reads a few passages while waiting for his turn to get back on the field. He said that the book centers him and helps him relax so he can play his best. He shows the cover of the book; “Inner Excellence” by Jim Murphy.

Of course, the story goes viral and here’s where it gets crazy. The book Inner Excellence goes straight to #1 on the Amazon trending list! What position was the book just before that? Get this: #523,497. That’s right, the book jumped more than half a million spots in 5 minutes. And of course, the author, who didn’t know what was going on until his phone alerts started “blowing up” was more than thrilled. He had written the book almost 5 years beforehand and said, I don’t know what happened but as you can imagine I’m grateful for the “good fortune that has come my way.”

Are you catching my drift? Luck is a real thing. But what is also real is that luck is always preceded by action, what’s the word? Action! Yes or Yes?

That even includes the simplest thing like winning the lottery. You first must “buy a ticket” in order to win. True or True?

One of the big lessons I teach in our business programs is to “get in the game.” What that means is that you can think and plan and strategize and prepare for many years but until you actually get in the game you can’t win and just as importantly, you can’t really learn. You can’t learn the inner nuances of the field or industry or business unless you are IN it.

This might be one of my most popular sayings:

"One step in the right direction is worth a hundred years of thinking about it."
– T. Harv Eker

Bottom line, remember this, luck follows action. Good or Good?

Again, let's do this as a declaration together.

Please put your hand on your heart and repeat (out loud is best)…

Luck follows action.

Again…

Luck follows action.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind"

Excellent!

So here's the BIG, BIG, BIG question. (Did I say big?) Actually one of the biggest questions you will ever answer in your life. Are you ready?

Here it goes: How much money will it take to live the lifestyle you want... ANNUALLY?

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 3)

We've gone through an example or what we might call a case study of what one affluent lifestyle looks like and more importantly what it costs. I'd like you to go back and review Robert's lifestyle and use it as a possible template to determine what you want. As I said, you might want more, or less, or totally different than Robert. And of course, you can change and you probably will change your mind many times during your life journey. But for now, it's important that you come up with a number. This number will serve as your intention and your direction to your inner GPS and again, that's the starting point for it's achievement. Yes or Yes? Best if you write your number down or if that's not possible right now, then say your number out loud as a proclamation to yourself and even to the Universe.

In my live seminars we ask participants if they are willing to share the amount of money it will take to live the lifestyle they truly want. People share all kinds of amounts; from the equivalent of $50,000 up to $5 million USD a year and everything in between. But for the most part, the range is somewhere between $350,000 to $500,000 a year. As I said, some people choose as little as $50,000 or $75,000 a year. I usually question those folks and ask them why they chose that amount? Their answer is usually something like, "I don't need a lot of money to be happy." Or "I don't want to waste resources." Or "I don't think I should have so much while others are struggling." Or "I don't want to work my life away and lose my health."

When I drill down a bit further what we generally find is that yes, all these students would LOVE, LOVE, LOVE to have a lot of money, but their beliefs are not supportive of that. That's why you are hopefully reading your Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book or maybe attending the Millionaire Mind Intensive Live Event: (Sorry, it's only offered in Europe and Asia right now) to change and reprogram your mind to think and therefore act in a way that empowers you to high levels of financial success.

Let me say this right here, right now. Do not let your old, non-supportive ways of thinking about money and wealth creep into your decision as to what you "want" your one and only lifestyle to be. You get to choose or re-choose right now. We can deal with these non-supportive ways of thinking a bit later. Again, for now, just go for what you want. Not what you "think" you can have or deserve to have. Just what you really want. Ok?

So again, approximately how much money will it take to live the lifestyle YOU really want ANNUALLY? Do you have your number? Well done. And for those of you who just kept reading or listening or watching and didn't choose your number, I'm going to say something that you may not like, but hopefully you're not here to "like", you're here to "learn". Yes or Yes?

It's another saying I'm known for and that a lot of people have copied. But I'm here to say, right now, that I said it.... second! Ha Ha. I'll bet you thought I was going to say first. Yes or Yes? But unlike too many other "teachers and coaches", I'm a big believer in giving credit to the people who originated a particular saying or quote. So, yes, I’ve said this about a million times in my seminars, but I first learned this from my Zen teacher Cheri Huber. (Look her up, she’s awesome!) Here we go...

“How you do anything is how you do everything.”

I can’t stress this enough so please repeat that sentence with me.

“How you do anything is how you do everything.”

Meaning the way you do one thing is a predictor of how you handle pretty well everything else. Meaning that after all the effort and energy you’ve put into reading or listening or watching this information and after all my encouragement, you still didn’t choose one number to start with.... that’s you. Chances are you tend to “skip over” very important details or steps in your life. Or maybe you’re afraid to make a decision. Or, or, or... whatever.

The point is that having this starting number can easily be the most important financial step of your life, especially right now. Also, we will still be doing a lot of work with this number. As I said, this is a starting point. So please, please, please just take 3 seconds, go to your heart and ask yourself, about how much money you think you will need in order to live the lifestyle you truly want for yourself and your family.

DO THIS NOW PLEASE. I’ll wait. Dum de dum de dum. (I’m supposed to be singing while I wait. Could you tell? No? Neither could I.) Moving on...

Let's use another example so you can all follow along as we go through the next steps. Ready?

Let's say that like some of our more modest Millionaire Mind seminar participants, you choose the number $400,000.

Ok great, we've got a semi-decent starting point. We're going for an annual income of $400,000. So, we're done right? Well not so fast.

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 4)

We still have to account for.... (don't throw up!)

Taxes and Inflation: Uggg!

The next step is to add at least 50% to your annual number for taxes and inflation. By the way, 50% is a fairly low estimate. For me and most of my friends, we would have to add 100% to offset the tax bracket we're in and that doesn't include inflation.

Remember, there's a good chance you're going to be living a very long time. Do you think prices are going to rise over your lifetime? Duh! I think so. Much more on this later.

Ok, so in our modest example, to actually live on, that means able to spend $400,000 a year, you would have to earn $600,000 a year.

Again in Robert's case, for him to actually have $1.3 million to spend he would have to earn about $2 million a year before taxes. For the most part, the more you earn, the more you get taxed. As an aside, don't buy into the broke mentality that rich people don't pay taxes. Or that rich people don't pay their "fair share". That's total horse manure farted out by the media because it's a good story, and by politicians because there are more people and therefore more votes to be had by cow towing to broke and middle-class people than rich people. In fact, get this; in the latest year of available data the top 1% of income earners paid 46% of all federal income taxes! That's more than the bottom 95% combined!!

Did someone say the rich don't pay their fair share? The reality is that almost half of all the money the government has is given to them by the so-called rich. And that the bottom 50% of all income earners pay only a total of 2% of all the taxes. Once again, did someone say the rich don't pay their fair share? Stop listening to that crap. And more importantly take note of who is spewing this misinformation. As I said, it's always going to be either broke people, or politicians, or the media looking for a victim-based story that the masses will gobble up. Alright, enough on this "fair share" stuff. Can you tell this hit a nerve? Sorry. I'll take a chill pill. Breeeeeathing... OM..... Ok. I'm back.

Sure, rich people usually have pretty good accountants who are knowledgeable about how to take advantage of any deductions that may be afforded to them, but I don't know of anyone, especially any of my rich friends that doesn't pay a fricken fortune in taxes either right now or in the future when they sell an asset. On a personal note, I beg my accountant every year to find me ways to reduce my taxes and the reply I get constantly is, “Harv, there’s not a lot of wiggle room anymore.” Barf!

So I pay a ton of taxes; close to 50% of all my income. Suffice it to say, that if you earn a lot of money, you better account for paying a lot of taxes. And if at the time you can somehow reduce that amount then congratulations, but we will plan for it because we don’t want any surprises. Make sense?

Having said that, if your goose can grow in a tax-sheltered manner that’s even better. In the U.S., that could mean an IRA or something similar. In Canada, that could mean an RRSP. This allows more of your money to be growing before it’s taxed when you take it out. Good or Good? Hopefully the government has something similar where you live.

Ok. What’s your new pre-tax earnings number? Again, if we are using $400,000 as the cost of our lifestyle our new number will have to be $600,000. What’s yours? And once more, please, please, please write this down or at least say this number out loud so you can put some energy behind it.

Alrighty then, so we now have our final Forever Free number. Yes or Yes? Actually no. Not yet.

Here’s where it gets interesting. Here’s where most people blow it. Here where most people get led astray by their friends and advisors. Are you ready? Give me 2 thumbs up and say as out loud as you can, “I’m ready.” Thank you.

Do you recall our definition of winning the money game? Your answer was financial freedom, right? And do you recall what the definition of financial freedom is?

Living the lifestyle you desire without having to work or rely on anyone else for money.

Now that you know how much money you need per year before taxes and inflation, in our example; $600,000 (which will net us our $400,000 we can live on) our next step will be to determine how we can receive this money without working or relying on anyone else for money. And income without working is called what? Correct. Passive Income.

Let's talk about passive income. You might recognize some of this from your Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book but we're going expand on it here a little more. Is that ok with you?

There are 2 Primary Sources of Passive Income.

1. Passive Income from Working Capital
2. Passive Income from Business

1. WORKING CAPITAL/GOLDEN GOOSE:

The first strategy is to amass a substantial amount of money; create a big "fat" (can I still say that word? No? Ok. Let me rephrase that) create a big "plus size" goose. (Better?) This is called "capital."

Ok. Let's get this out in the open. When I refer to "fat" I don't mean it a derogatory or judgmental way, I mean "large" in terms of amount of money. So let's not get hung up on the perfect or appropriate wording to use these days. How about we focus on the task at hand and that's creating FIRST-CLASS FREEDOM.

Fair enough? And one more thing while we're at it, if you are the type of person that is "offended" by the word "fat" then chances are you will have a hard time creating high levels of success. Why? Because you are offended way to easily! Sorry, but I'll say it again and again, the journey to success is not easy. Everything does not go your way. You will have ups and downs. Meaning you will need to have a "tough" skin.

Sorry. That's just the way it is and if you don't believe me just look at anyone who is highly successful whether they are in a high-level job, or own a business, or they're an athlete or even a mom or dad. True or True? In short, let "it" go. And what is "it"? Everything and anything that could stop or be an obstacle for you and your mind.

My friends, I hope you don't think I'm being mean, but the truth is that I'm not here to be your friend. I'm here to be your "BEST FRIEND" and that means telling you things that your friends would never tell you because they have something to lose with you. I don't. Sure, I'd love for you to like me. Everyone loves that. But to me that's not nearly as important as one thing; you becoming FREE and hopefully RICH! I figure if you utilize what I'm teaching and it helped you become super successful, then you'll like me. I'm good with that. Are you?

Ok. Back to business.

This creating a big "extra fat" (ha ha) goose/working capital can be done by first saving a good portion of your working, or what we call, "active" income, and then investing into vehicles that hopefully appreciate in value. This could include stocks, real estate, crypto, art, collectibles, etc. These are generally called Equity Investments.

NOTE: This is super important! When I reference "saving" money I strongly, what's the word? strongly suggest you use the PAY YOURSELF FIRST strategy.

Meaning every time you get paid if you are in a job, or take money out of your company if you are in a business, you take a minimum of 10% of those funds and put them into your "Forever Free" Account/Golden Goose. In the Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book I call it your FFA; your Financial Freedom Account. It's all the same thing and the key is that this money is not to be spent. It's to be grown and grown and grown until one day you can choose to stop or slow down your work and live off it. Good or Good?

I sure hope you're getting this because this is where most people blow it. They live based on the "LEFT OVER" strategy.

Meaning, the "I'll save and invest whatever I have left over after everything else" method. That doesn't work! Have you noticed there's seldom much of anything left over? (Barf!) This is the method virtually all broke people use to handle their finances. And that's why they're broke now and probably always will be.

"But Harv, you don't understand. I have to pay my bills."

Yes, I do understand. Should I say it again? This is a broke person's mentality. Yes, you do have to pay your bills. The question is when? The answer is AFTER, what's the word? after, you pay yourself your 10%.

"But Harv, if I take 10% off the top, I won't have enough money to live on."

Bullsh*t! If you ever want to be free you simply pretend that the 90% you're now living on is all you have. And guess what? Somehow you will inherently adjust your lifestyle and expenditures and that 90% will feel totally normal again… and in the end you will be FREE!!!

And if it still feels "tight" and that you don't have enough money to put away your 10% then you have 2 choices. Spend less or earn more. That's it. There's no leeway. You must put the FIRST 10% of all income into your Freedom account. Or you're doomed. I hope I'm being adamant enough. Do you want to be free? Then make the decision to just do this.

"But Harv, I'm not earning hardly any money right now."

Fine, take one dollar. Exchange it into dimes (10 cent coins) Put 10%, that's 1 dime into a jar and that will get you started. And when you've reached $10, open your Freedom account offline or online and put that $10 in. And there you go. You've started your journey and now that the Universe knows you're serious about being free, somehow money and opportunities will begin to come to you. I know that sounds woo-woo but it's really your inner GPS, your Reticular Activator at work. Don't overthink it. Just do it. Ok?

One last thing on the Pay Yourself First strategy; If you do it, you will start feeling like a "million bucks." In other words, you will feel amazing about yourself and your future. Why? Because you will subconsciously know you are on the right road to being free and maybe even rich. Great or Great?

Whew! Ok. Where were we?

In addition, to investing in vehicles that appreciate, you can also invest in interest and dividend bearing vehicles. Investments that pay you income/cash flow. Examples could include T-bills, money market, bonds, certificates of deposits, corporate dividends, mortgages that you own not owe, annuities, and once again, real estate.

Did you notice real estate was in both categories? Appreciation and cash flow? Thousands and thousands of people have created their wealth and their affluent lifestyle using real estate. Real estate can often produce cash flow properties as well as appreciate. Good or Good?

Remember my buddy with the 100 plus homes in Phoenix? He's got the game mastered. And one more thing to note is that real estate investments often give you some awesome tax advantages. Just sayin!

While you are in the accumulation or building your wealth stage you take this cash flow and reinvest it into more equity or income-based vehicles.

All this is building your capital or big fat golden goose.

Quack or Quack. ☺

And eventually when you are ready to maybe stop or slow down working and live mostly off your passive income, you take all of the money, all of the big fat goose and put it into interest or dividend bearing vehicles so you can get paid cash on a monthly or quarterly basis. Or you can keep it in equity investments that are doing well, and in addition, live off the appreciation portion of that investment.

For example, let's say you have $100,000 in Apple stock and it goes up by an average of $10,000 a year. You can withdraw just the appreciation portion, in this case, the $10,000 a year and make that part of the money you live off. That $10,000 would now be considered passive income. Of course, you don't want to have your lifestyle depend on one stock or one anything else for that matter. This is why you diversify and have several types of investments working for you.

Again, you don't want to kill your golden goose. You only want to live off the "eggs" or income that your goose delivers.

Let's give this some energy with a declaration.

Please put your hand on your heart and repeat:

I only live off the eggs that my golden goose produces.

Again.

I only live off the eggs that my golden goose produces.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind!"

Good work!

Sound good so far? I hope so because that's the easy part. Now, are you ready to be shocked? And I mean SHOCKED! Take a deep breath. Innnnnnnn and Ouuuuuuut. Ok. Here we go.

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 5)

We now need to determine how much money we need to accumulate as lump sum capital, your golden goose, in order for those investments or that goose to deliver the amount of "eggs" (passive income) you need to live the lifestyle you desire.

Let me explain.

Interest and fixed income return rates have generally been ranging between 2% and 7% without a lot of risk. Assuming you get say 5% interest or return on your money, how much lump sum capital (big goose) will you need working for you to derive the annual income you need (eggs only) to live the lifestyle you want? This is your original freedom number plus the 50% for tax and inflation.

So how much capital do you need to be working for you to derive the income (eggs) you need, after taxes and inflation?

Here's a little trick. At 5% average interest, multiply how much you need per year by 20.

For example, if you decided you need $100,000 per year to live the lifestyle you desire, you first add 50% for taxes and inflation, which is $150,000 and now multiply that $150,000 by 20 which equals 3 million in capital, in your golden goose, working for you. Are you with me so far?

Let me do this in reverse so you fully understand it.

$3 million in capital, big goose, working for you at 5% equals $150,000 in income or eggs. Yes or Yes? Great. But don't forget you have to pay tax on that $150,000 which will net you the $100,000 you said you wanted to live on. Is this making sense? Ok let's move a little faster now.

Going back to our initial example, if you said you need $400,000 per year. Again, first you would add 50% which means you need to earn $600,000 pre-tax and then multiply that by 20 and that means you will need $12 million of capital working for you. Are you still breeeeeeathing?

I want to reiterate that in the examples above, we are living only off the income or cash flow or eggs (they're all the same). We are not touching (killing) our golden goose or the lump sum capital we have working for us. Yes or Yes?

"But Harv, these numbers are nutso. Is there a way to make this more doable"? Yes there is. Whew. Stay tuned.

Meanwhile, as I said earlier, the amount you want to live on is a very personal one. To each his or her own, right? However, it's imperative you know the ramifications of your choices. In my seminars I ask people to raise their hand when I call out the lump sum capital or golden goose amount they need working for them.

I usually start by asking, "How many of you have a golden goose (amount of money working for you) number of less than one million dollars?" And I often get quite a few people raising their hand. And that's usually because they didn't understand the exercise or did it incorrectly.

How do I know that? Because a golden goose of less than one million dollars at 5% interest means you are living on $50,000 a year or less. And unfortunately, you still must pay tax. So it's going to be considerably less than that. In most first world countries, living on less than $50,000 means you're basically broke so maybe you want to adjust your numbers. Assuming you want to be somewhat affluent vs. close to living in survival. Again, just sayin.

Speaking of affluent, let's go back and look at Robert's example again. He and his family need $1.3 million a year after tax to live their lifestyle. That means Robert needs an income of close to $2,000,000 a year before taxes. To do that he needs $40,000,000 working for him. Yes or Yes?

It's a great lifestyle for sure but I can tell you from experience, it's not all that unusual for affluent families. "Wait a minute Harv. Are you saying having $40 million in working (investment) capital is fairly normal for the category of people you hang out with?" No. I am not saying that it's normal. I'm saying that it's LOW! That's right, I'll say it again. A $40 million capital goose is good, but not great in comparison to those who have achieved what I'll call "wealth." Also, we haven't even discussed the difference between your golden goose and your net worth. Those are very different. More on that in a moment.

Ok so now that you hopefully understand all this better, I want you to stop and think about your one and only life, and your family's life, and possibly revise your intention for the amount of money you will need to accumulate as lump sum capital working for you, or what we call your golden goose. Again, this is not the time to think about all your reasons why not or why you can't. This is the time to think about what you really want regardless of how that number might scare the heck out of you right now. Are you still breeeeeeeathing? I sure hope so.

Of course, your primary home is going to count in all this right? Here comes another SHOCKER!
No. Not right…

Your Primary Residence Does NOT Count

Unfortunately you can't count your main home as part of your golden goose. (Uggg) Why? Because you need to live in it. So it doesn't create income. To the contrary, it will create expenses.

This is critical so let me repeat it in a different way so you really get this. The goose is a working goose. It must be a goose that can lay eggs for us to live on. Meaning it must produce cash flow for us. Yes or Yes?

Does your main home produce cash flow? Nope. So unfortunately your main home can't be part of your big goose because it doesn't produce income. Does that make sense?

What about your vacation home or homes? Is that part of your goose? Yes. (Yay, finally some good news!)

Why? Because it's not your primary home. You don't "have" to live there. You have a choice as to whether you keep it or not. You can always sell it and put that money into your big goose/working capital. True or True?

This is the reason many people, especially in their later years, choose to downsize. Sure, part of it might be that the kids have moved out, so they don't need a large home in terms of space or expenses.

But for a lot of people downsizing means moving from a more expensive home to a less expensive home and then adding the difference to their working golden goose, which in turn allows them to produce more eggs or cash flow and live an even more affluent lifestyle.

It all depends on how you want to live. Personally, for me, downsizing would mean only living in one house. But that's still going to be one heck of a big, beautiful and very expensive house.

Even though your primary home is not included in your golden goose it is included as part of your net worth.

If your primary home is worth say $3 million and you need a golden goose of say $12 million working for you to live on, you would need a net worth of $15 million. Make sense?

When I'm teaching all this live in my seminar, I notice that at this point, a majority of the participants start looking a little pale, antsy and very uncomfortable. Another way of putting it is that they're scared sh*tless! Because financially, where they are now and where they need or want to go is very, very, very, very, very, (and 100 more verys) far apart. Heck, if I saw that delta I'd be scared too unless of course I had a multi-millionaire mind, which I suppose I do. In that case I'd let go of the fear and replace it with motivation and excitement for what's to come. I'd replace the doubt with the understanding that with the right knowledge and the right mindset I could create whatever I choose in this life. The good news is that's exactly what we're working on here. (Subconsciously, in case you hadn't noticed). Great or great?

Achieving Your Forever Free Number (made easier)

Now let's go back to the amount of money or capital you are going to need working for you, as in how much do you need in your golden goose.

Would you like to create a situation where don't need to amass as much of a lump sum or capital? Where you don't need to create such a big "fat" goose. Where achieving your forever free amount is made easier? (Finally, right!)

2. PASSIVE BUSINESS INCOME:

As I discuss in the Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book, the idea is to supplement your investment income by earning passive income from other sources.

So, the second primary source of passive income is ongoing passive business income. This is where instead of having "money" working for you, you have "business" working for you. Good or Good?

These are business-based vehicles where you will most likely put effort in to start. Then set them up or systemize them so eventually you don't have to be there, and you can make money while you sleep or sit on the beach or whatever else you choose to do. In short, you create business-based income that runs without you so you don't have to work or at least not very much. Would that be of interest to you? I sure hope so because if you do this right, you could be riding on a great money gravy train for a loooooong, looooong, loooooong time. Maybe even a lifetime. Awesome or Awesome?

Can you think of some examples of “business based” passive income vehicles?

Some of these are referenced in the book, but for your convenience I’ll list them again here.

Passive Business Income Vehicles include....

- Real estate rental income with positive cash flow.
Again, tens of thousands of people have become financially free from this vehicle alone. And it’s a very learnable skill. Good or Good?

- Licensing products or services.

- Royalties from books, software, art, music, etc.
I know for a fact that you can make an ongoing passive income fortune from some of these because this is my personal experience, especially with books. I’m going to let you in on a little secret. Ready? I’m in shock, I repeat, in shock at the amount of royalties I’m still getting from my Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book 20 years later! Yes, I’ve heard it’s an awesome book and yes, it’s in 41 languages and yes, it’s sold over 6.5 million copies, but the amount of royalties I’m still getting is insane. Let’s put it this way, the amount of income I’m receiving from this one book alone is more than what we’ve discussed as needed for an affluent lifestyle. Just from this one fricken book! And yes I did a ton of work promoting and selling the book at the beginning, but I kid you not I haven't done anything for it in 18 years and it's still bringing in a massive passive income. I love that for me and I'd love that even more for you.

And I don't want to hear, "Well that was then and this is now." I call bullsh*t on that! Or "That's a one in a million situation." I call bullsh*t on that! Or "I'm not an author." And you guessed it, I call bullsh*t on that! Not the point. Those phrases come from a broke mindset not a millionaire mindset and definitely not even close to a multi-millionaire mindset. Understood?

We are CAN DO, not can't do people. You do you! Meaning you do whatever is in your skill set and your interest set, and your life purpose set. You do whatever resonates with you, but you DO!

In other words, choose something and go for it. And if that doesn't work out, choose something else and go for it. And if that doesn't work out.... (I think you know what I'm going to say!) because any action is better than no action. My friends, please hear this loud and clear.

No action equals no success!
And…
No action equals no learning!

If you feel afraid, that's normal. But so what. Do it anyway. Be a warrior and act in spite of fear!

By the way, if you want, engrain this “warrior” (make that “enlightened” warrior) way of being I wrote an entire course on it called The Secrets of Inner Power. If you are interested, I invite you to start with my complimentary Wealth Class called Don’t Believe A Thought You Think. That will get you thinking about not thinking the way you’ve been thinking. Unless you’re super happy and super rich. In that case go ahead and keep thinking the thoughts you’ve been thinking, because they work! Get it?

Onward... let’s discuss some more passive business vehicle examples:

- E-commerce and online marketing systems... that eventually work without you. Some popular options right now are having a Youtube channel, or an online school, or becoming a social media influencer.

- Apps

- Subscriptions

- Systemized Businesses that can run profitably without you.

- Laundromats (especially themed)

- Vending machines or equipment (There are several really modern ones in airports right now. I even bought some ear pods from a vending machine at the airport a few weeks ago.)

- Video games/arcade, (fun and keeps the kids entertained... a blessing!)

- Coin operated car wash, (I have a friend who owns a bunch of these. Makes a passive killing!)

- Storage units, Specialty RV or boat storage

- Tanning studio (yup, still around) or Infrared light studio

- Cryotherapy studio (up and comer right now)

- Sauna, breathwork, cold plunge studio (seems like "cold" is the new "hot" business right now.)

The goal is to systemize any business so it runs without you including what would normally be very simple personal service businesses.

For example, mobile car detailing, landscaping/gardening or snow removal. The idea is to get the ongoing contracts with your clients and then hire other people to do the work. Including hiring a manager to manage the entire business for you. I think my landscaper, who I've never seen after I signed the contract with him and does virtually every house in the neighborhood earns more than I do! In fact, the last time I did see him and his wife was at a super high-end restaurant eating a steak and lobster dinner! (He was gracious enough to say hi to me. I was thrilled and barely stopped myself from asking for his autograph!)

Again, let me reiterate this so it sinks in deeply. The basic premise here is to create or buy business vehicles that will eventually create ongoing streams of income without you working.

Just one stream? That's a good start, but you can have several streams of ongoing passive business income. Good or Good?

Again, there's a lot of talk going around about "multiple streams of income." That sounds great but what it really ends up meaning is that you work your ass off. Is that what we want? Heck no.

Remember the goal is to NOT be working but YES be making money, lots of money. Yes or Yes?

So let's make sure we add the most important word in our current vocabulary to that statement and what's that word?

You got it. "PASSIVE".

Therefore, the secret is to not to have multiple streams of income, it's to have "multiple streams of PASSIVE income." Yes or Yes or Yes!

That deserves a declaration.

Please put your hand on your heart and say the following out loud the best you can…

I create multiple streams of PASSIVE income.

Again,

I create multiple streams of PASSIVE income.

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind!"

Nicely done!

Now here is where I often get people screaming that some of these are not passive income vehicles because they might take some work. Yes, it's true. Some vehicles will take "some" work. But the goal is to set it up so that it's a minimal amount of work. So what if you have to check up on the place once in a while? So what if you have to have a convo with your manager once in a while? So what if you have to make sure the money has been deposited into your account? Are you going to cry because you have to put in a tiny amount of effort? And now you're going to say these are not "really" passive? If so, that's a broke mind talking.

My friends, if you have a multi-millionaire mind you don't "have" to check up on these vehicles, you "want" to check up on them. Why? To make sure they are running smoothly and efficiently and more and more profitably. In reality most passive businesses will take a tiny bit of supervision. That's just what is, so please don't follow the broke minds that say it's not passive because you have to put in a little bit of energy once in a while. Let me put it this way, if you can get a business to run 95% on it's own that means you are free 95% of the time while making a fortune. Is that ok with you? It is with me and it is with every wealthy person I know. Because even if you're really, really, really rich, you're going to have to watch and adjust your finances on somewhat of a regular and ongoing basis.

One of my closest buddies is a Billionaire. That's a capital B! What does he do most days? He wakes up. Works out. Eats a light breakfast. Spends a couple of hours handling his investments and his "passive" businesses, goes golfing, goes to the beach, goes to an amazing restaurant for dinner with his wife and usually with another couple, watches some streaming series with his wife, then he and his wife get ready for bed and .... I better stop here or I'll get in trouble. But you get the point. He has a great and free life.

He is a billionaire and he still spends a couple of hours most days reviewing his investments and handling his passive businesses. He doesn't have to, he wants to. And I can confirm that he is "happy as a clam" (is that still a saying?) And he's the nicest and most generous guy ever! Good or Good?

So, would you love a lifestyle that's something like that? Most people would give their right arm to be able to live like that. Which is not smart especially if you're right-handed. You get the point. Yes or Yes?

Ok so let's rewind and review where we're at so far.

We are going to:
1. Have a strong working or active income (make a lot of money).
2. Save a good portion of that money.
3. Invest that saved money wisely so it grows into a big fat golden goose/working capital.
4. Eventually put our golden goose/working capital into income based investments that spin off loads of cash for us to live on.
5. Create or buy additional passive "business" income vehicles to supplement our cash flow.

Got it? Well done. Whoot, whoot. Give yourself a round of applause!!!

Again, in my seminars I often get the question;

What about SOCIAL SECURITY income?

Good question. You're not going to like the answer. Why? Because it goes against a very popular but very broke mindset.

First do you recall our definition of financial freedom? Let me remind you. Financial freedom is that ability to live the lifestyle you desire without having to work or rely, what's the word? Rely on anyone else for money.

So if you get social security that's awesome. But a few things to consider…

1. You are still relying on someone or some entity for money. Not good.

2. In the grand scheme of what we're talking about the amount you could receive is pretty paltry.

Guess how much the average American will receive as a social security payment per month?

Right now it's about $1,800 bucks per month, which is enough to buy you what? Rent? Nope. Mortgage? Nope. Then what? If you're looking to live a first-class lifestyle then it might pay for your once-a-week date nights for a month. Ok. Maybe I'm exaggerating just a little, but again, we eat at the best and usually very expensive restaurants where the average meal with a good bottle of wine is going to run you close to $500 with tip. In short, $1,800 a month is nice but it's going to be a footnote in your financial life. True or True? (You better have said "true" because you are going to be rich. Yes or Yes?)

"But Harv, I'm getting way more than $1,800 a month". Really? How much more. The maximum you can get if you made like $120,000 a year for about 25 years is about $2,500 per month. Wow, game changer! Yeesh! My friends, you are now in a different league, and you need to start thinking that way. You can't be worrying about a few hundred bucks a month when you should be thinking about tens of thousands a month. That's the difference between a broke mind and a multi-millionaire mind. Agreed?

3. When it comes to social security you have to hope it's still available to you when you retire. Do you believe the government is brilliant when it comes to managing money? Maybe you shouldn't answer that question. At least not truthfully. At this time, the USA is over 34 Trillion in debt. Is that nuts or what? Regardless, changing the debt is well above my pay grade, but for our purposes what's important is that it's not unfathomable for the money to run out and the Social Security program cease to exist.

And that could happen by a single ruling by a president that says, "Sorry, we're going to have to cut the Social Security program out completely or at least cut it down." And if that money was what you were counting on to live then guess what? You are P.O.L. (poop out of luck.)

By the way, have you noticed that in many countries they keep raising the age whereby you can collect your full amount? Pretty soon you'll collect when you're 90. Good luck with that!

4. Bottom line, the Social Security program was created as a safety net for the least successful people in the country. Basically, the broke folks so they don't starve. Not as your primary source of income when you retire.

Let me ask you? Do you really want to depend on Social Security for your freedom?

The answer is a solid "no fricken way." It's so minuscule we're barely going to count it in our plan. Again, rich people don't even think about it. I know I shouldn't tell you this because I'm supposed to be some financial guru, but I didn't even realize I was able to collect social security until 6 months ago. And I could have started several years ago! That's how much attention this whole Social Security amount got from me. Zilch!

But having said all that sorta sketchy stuff about social security, it can and should be used as another supplement to your passive income. It may not be a lot but it's something so let's not discount it all together. At the same time, you can't count on it for your freedom. It's just not enough to live anywhere close to a first-class lifestyle unless you live in the Amazon jungle in which case you get to buy some extra bananas. Yay!

Let's talk about people with a PENSION. From what I know, some pensions are quite good. But the question I have is, good compared to what? Again, many pensions are at about the same financial level as social security. Not a lot unless of course you've been working for the government. In that case your pension might be like a billion dollars a year or something. Only kidding, but really, some of these government employees have huge pensions which is why many people choose those jobs. Their motto is, "Just 20 years of hell and then I can retire." Yay! Nice way to live.

Even still, that pension might be up to $100,000 a year. That's great, right? Hmmm, let's think about this. This pension is still taxable so now it's down to about $65,000 that you could actually live on. That's ok for survival today, but is it affluent? Not even close. Having said that, as I mentioned, some pensions are pretty good especially if you've been involved with a very large corporation or sports team or again a government agency. etc.

I have one buddy who retired from one of the biggie tech companies and pulls down a pension that is close to $350,000 a year. If you can grab a gig like that, you might want to jump at it.

However, as we both know, those type of jobs and positions are very far and few between. My friend was a big wig at the "C" level. (CEO, CFO, CMO, CTO, etc) and not only did he have an enormous pension, prior to that he also had an enormous salary and bonuses etc., etc. Like I said, if you can put yourself in a position like this, power to you!

Back to the government, I have another friend whose son is a fire captain. After a certain number of years, he will get 90% of his highest salary during that time. He is expecting his pension to be close to $250,000 a year AND he gets all his medical bills paid for life!!! Even still, the tax man and inflation cometh and so his quarter million turns into about $165,000. Not nearly enough to have a first-class lifestyle. But what I love is that he is also a very astute investor involved in stocks, real estate and crypto and doing really well with these investments so his pension is a nice "add on". Suffice it to say that again, he is a fire captain and there's relatively few of those positions available in the entire country.

Bottom line both social security and pensions are wonderful as bonuses. What's the word? Bonuses. Add ons. Supplements. But if you count on them as your mainstay for your retirement lifestyle you're probably going to be screwed if you want to live a "first-class" lifestyle.

They remind me of the stocking stuffer at Christmas. Nice but where are my "real" presents?

So yes, you are welcome to add any pensions or social security income into your ongoing lifestyle cash flow calculations just don't count on them. Remember, we're looking for whales not minnows. Fair enough?

I just reread what I wrote and maybe it sounds a little harsh, so I want to reiterate that I am not here to discount lower levels of financial success or more minimalistic lifestyles or even suggest that smaller amounts of money aren't valuable. What I am here to suggest is that none of this fits into the "MULTI" millionaire mind. As I said, we focus on whales not minnows.

Another way of saying this is that my intention for you is to get fricken RICH! That's right, RICH! At least rich enough to live the lifestyle you truly want for you and your family.

That's my goal; to reprogram your mind for "affluence" and even "wealth" that begins by creating an accurate or "right" intention for how much money you are going to need and where it's going to come from. And it's probably a lot more than you thought. And that's what we're doing here. Making sure you've got the right target. That, my friends, is half the battle. You have to know where you're going in order to get there. Yes or Yes? You have to know what to set your inner GPS/Reticular Activator for. Yes or Yes?

Speaking of rich, let me point out one specific opportunity whereby if you can get it, you could be golden. Do you want to hear about it? Are you sure? Are you ready? Are you surely ready? (Yes, I know that's grammatically incorrect. What else is new? This entire book bonus is a grammatical sh*t show! Yes or Yes? Hey, you don't have to always agree!)

Ok, enough build up. Here we go.

Let's call this supplement:

STOCK OPTIONS.

"I'm not gonna lie", (actually that's a phrase my daughter-in-law uses all the time. Only thing is that she's about 40 years younger than me. So it's cool for her but maybe I'm not in the right generation to use it.) So let me rephrase that; "Let me be right up front." (Better?) Anyway, what I'm trying (poorly) to say is that I am not a corporate guy. I have had little experience in dealing with or being part of large companies except once, and after that experience I vowed "never again." But that's me. I always believed that pretty well everyone who got rich either started their own business and eventually sold it for big bucks, or had a job with a very large income and invested well for a long time.

However, in the past decade, I've come to learn that there is another way that many of my rich friends have made and continue to make their money. And that way is stock options. What are they? Simple.

They're options to purchase the company's stock at a certain price sometime in the future. Meaning, if you get in with one of these high-growth companies, hopefully near the beginning, and they eventually go public or they already are public but they're still growing by leaps and bounds, and you can get stock options as part of your pay package, you could as I said, be golden.

I have many, many, many friends that retired somewhat early, as in late 40's and early 50's, that sold off some of their stock and came away with millions and millions of dollars. Even better is that they still have a huge amount of stock left. Based on their original agreement, some of them have to sell their stock every year and some every quarter.

I have one very close buddy whose biggest problem is, (you're going to freak out when I tell you) "What am I going to do with the $300,000 I'm getting this (and every) quarter? Sometimes he saves these payments up and buys something amazing like a top-of-the-line new boat or a "million dollar" sound system for his home. (Not an exaggeration, it actually cost him that much.) Most other times he chooses a charity to donate that extra money to. Of course, he is more than financially free and became so in his 40's. Because...... he got the right job with the right company at the right time. He excelled at his work and got promoted and promoted and promoted until he was near the top and got a pay package that gave him a huge salary and bonuses, but most importantly gave him stock options and those have been his big bonanza.

Again, the corporate world is not my bag, but my friends are. And we're often talking about how we "made it". We tell each other things, especially financial things, we would never share with the public or anyone but our besties who are close to our same wealth level because we understand each other. And because I'm the only one who's an actual author, I get to share it all with you. Good or Good?

Ok time to review again but in a little different way. Remember, repetition is the mother of learning:

The objective to winning money game is to become financially free.

To become financially free, you need to have enough passive income to pay for your desired lifestyle.

To have enough passive income to pay for your desired lifestyle your best bet is to have both investment income and passive business income working for you producing cash flow, or as they say in Italian; biga beautifula golden goosa eggsa! (As you can see, I speak other languages too!)

And if and when you're a little older, you can add to your goose eggs with social security. Meh.

And if you're in the right position you can supplement your goose eggs with a pension. Better.

Add to that, if you can put yourself in a situation where you are cashing in stock options on an ongoing basis that would be more than amazing. Whoa!

Got it? Good!

Now touch your head with your index finger and say…

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind!"

Well done!

Based on the million students I have and hearing from literally thousands of them, I can tell you that although I've outlined several ways to supplement your investment income (your lump sum capital/big goose), most people either won't create those supplements or just won't be in a position to utilize those supplements or as we've noted, those supplements just won't be meaningful enough.

I'm not saying you won't, I'm saying the average student regardless of what they've been taught and regardless of what they know just doesn't end up doing it. It's unfortunate but that's just human nature. Why am I telling you this? Because I'd rather you be safe than sorry. Meaning I'd rather have you forget about these supplemental income sources just for now. Again, only for now. Just while we’re clarifying our freedom number so we can keep it simple and easy to understand and then as time goes on and we find ourselves implementing some of these supplemental income sources, we can readjust how much we need in investment working capital. Does that make sense?

So again, we’ll start with the total amount of money you’re going to need to accumulate and have working for you to be able to live the lifestyle you truly desire without having to work. In short, just your golden goose.

Ok so here we go.

What’s your actual Forever Free number?

Your big goose. Again, we start with… what’s the amount of money you need annually to lead a first-class, affluent life?

In my view, based on current costs of everything and living in the nicest areas in most first world countries…

You will need an absolute minimum of .... $500,000 pretax a year, which after tax is about $350,000 if you have a decent tax accountant.

To earn $500,000 pretax, at say 5% interest or appreciation that you distribute to yourself, you would need $500,000 x 20 (our easy trick) = $10,000,000 in capital, money working for you.

Did you just say WTF? C’mon admit it. You said that right?

As in Harv, are you kidding? You're saying to live a semi, semi, affluent life at the lowest level I need to accumulate 10 million dollars and that doesn't even include my main house?

Yup!

Wait. So, what if I want to live a truly first-class, affluent life and not at the minimum level? What if I want a better level.

Ok, so again in my experience that would mean you would need to earn about $1,000,000 a year pretax which after tax would probably net you about $650,000 a year to live on. Now that's not our friend Robert's lifestyle but it's pretty great.

So how much do we need to accumulate in our golden goose to earn a million dollars a year? Well go ahead and use your x20 trick and the answer is that we need to get to 20 million dollars working for us and again that doesn't include our main house.

Whaaaaaat???? 20 million to live off $650,000?

Yup!

Ok, so let's move up to our friend Robert's level. Did his and his family's life seem great to you? It does to me because to be fully transparent, it's fairly close to the way I live. And it's more than awesome, amazing, incredible, fantastic!

Do you recall what Robert spent a year? Wasn't it about $1.3 million? And that's after tax. So, before tax that would be say about $2 million to round it off.

So how much must Robert have in his goose, his accumulated working capital, to be earning $2 million dollars a year? That's right, $40 million dollars and that doesn't include his main house which was another 6 or 7 million.

And recall that Robert has a couple of other homes worth about another $10 million or more. Those aren't earning him any money so we can't count their value until he sells them and turns them into working capital, which by the way he doesn't need to do yet and maybe never will.

Meaning Robert's net worth is at least close to $60 million. That's the reality of what it takes to live his lifestyle.

Does Robert collect social security? Nope. Not old enough yet.
Does Robert have a pension? Nope. Owed his own business.
Does Robert have stock options? Nope. His was a privately held company. Just him and one partner.
Does Robert have any passive "businesses?" Yup. His daughter now runs his company, and he is pretty well out of the picture, except for cashing the checks (online of course) he still gets every quarter.

Are these crazy ass numbers? Well, if you're not used to them then I suppose they are. They sure would have been incomprehensible to me a few decades ago, but believe it or not, Robert's net worth is probably at the low end of the spectrum in all the communities I live in. Whaaaaaat? $60 million dollars is low?

Yup!

As an aside, you might be thinking, Harv, these dollar amounts are mind-numbing. You keep referring to 10 and 20 and even 60 million dollars. I'm not even close to even being a 1 or 2 or even a 3 millionaire. So why are you showering me with the huge dollar amounts?

Great question. The reason I keep inundating you with massive amounts of money is to reprogram your subconscious mind. By constantly bringing up these large (but very doable – me whispering: you can do it, you can do it, you can do it) numbers again and again, we are getting you used to these amounts and making them seem almost "normal." And if they're normal they become more comfortable and more realistic and therefore more achievable. Make sense?

Don't let these numbers scare you, let them motivate you. That's the MULTI-millionaire mind. Yes or Yes?

What about the ads I see on "how to retire with a million dollars or less?"

Ok. You asked. So now I need to cover something super important concerning your Freedom Number.

There is a huuuuuuuge distinction between how I see your Freedom Number versus how a lot of financial planners see it. My view is that you want to accumulate enough money to be able to live only off the eggs, or interest or earnings from that working capital goose. And you never, when? never touch your golden goose at least until you are very, very old. More on that in a moment.

How do many financial planners view it? They help you figure out what your expenses are going to be when you retire and then divide your accumulated wealth (investment capital) into the number of years their charts expect you to live and then they add in your passive income, or eggs as we call it, and that's how much money you can spend each year.

Let's say you want to be financially free, meaning you get to choose to work or not, at say 55 years old. (I'd love to see this happen a lot sooner for you but I'm giving you a more "realistic for the masses" example.) And let's say you have a total net worth of say 1 million dollars. They would use their calculations and maybe their average age is living to about 80. So you have 25 years left. Stay with me here. Now they're going to divide your million dollars into 25 years. That's about $40,000 a year. Plus they would add any social security or pension except at 55 you may be too young to receive it. So we'll pass on that for now, just to be on the safe side. Alright with you?

In addition, we need to add your interest or eggs that you'd receive from your original million. At 5% your million would earn you about $50,000 a year, but remember the tax man and inflation so now that's about $30,000. Ok. your grand total that you get to live on is... dadadadaaaa (that's supposed to be a trumpet blowing) is $40,000 (of what was once working capital) plus $30,000. You get to live on $70,000. Yay! Congratulations. You're fricken BROKE! Are you kidding me? What kind of life can you live on $70,000 a year? Definitely not an affluent or first-class life. And not even a decent middle-class life.

And wait a minute. What if you live longer than the 80 years they figured for you? You're screwed!!! What if you have unexpected medical or care bills? You're screwed!! You have no capital (big goose) left working for you. That's ok because you still have eggs coming in right? Nope. Remember, your eggs come from your golden goose, but you don't have a goose anymore. You killed it by spending it. So, you've basically got no money left. Do I need to say it again? Ok, just to solidify this point... You're screwed!!

Here's a real-life example. Last night I was having dinner with an old friend. He was sharing that his wife couldn't make it to Hawaii this year because she didn't want to leave her aging dad in Montreal. Her dad is 99 years old! (way to go, Dad!) His wife (her mom) passed a year ago but he is still in the condo they've lived in for over 25 years. Mentally he is doing quite well. Physically not so much. He definitely doesn't want to go into any type of assisted care facility, so he has 24/7 in-home care. Do you have any idea what 24/7 care costs? It takes 4 caregivers (8 hour shifts plus the weekend) at $50,000 a year each. That's $200,000.

And what about additional out of pocket medications and procedures? Bottom line, my buddy told me that the kids are spending ALL their inheritance on his care. They're ok to do it. Why? Well obviously, because they love him but also because if they weren't spending his money they'd have to pay for it all out of their own pockets. Thank goodness he has enough (barely) to cover his in-home care for a little while longer. Otherwise, what would happen? They'd have to put him into some kind of cheapo government old age institution. I don't know about you, but this is NOT how I want to spend the last years of my life and thankfully I'm not going to have to. Why? Because my "goose" is going stay intact for as long as I live and any care I need is going to come from my "eggs." Is this making sense?

My friends, it's one thing to run out of money when you're in your 20's or 30's or 40's or maybe even in your 50's because you hopefully have time to make it back. However, it is a complete disaster if you run out of money when you're older. Or even when you're young and retired and now have to go back to work again. You have lost your freedom. And how did you lose it? By spending it!

Again, that's why I'm a big believer in our philosophy of not spending your working capital but living off only the interest or earnings from that capital so that capital/big goose stays strong and long. Please reread the story of the farmer who killed his golden goose a few more times. How many times? A hundred times! Or until you're scared sh*tless of spending a dollar of your goose/working capital. Are you starting to understand how important it is to accumulate this working capital and how even more important it is not to spend it? I sure hope so. To that end I'm even going to add yet another name to your working capital or big goose and that is your 'FREEDOM' capital. Now tell me you want to spend your "freedom" capital. No? I didn't think so. So don't!

I hope you recognize that I keep repeating this concept again and again and again so it engrains deeply inside you. You ok with that?

In my seminars this is when I get another question and it's quite valid.

What happens to that big goose or capital when you pass?

Answer: That's totally up to you. You can do with that money as you please. You can choose to give it to whoever you want. You can give it to your kids or family or friends or charities or your church or synagogue, or maybe you give it to a hospital and maybe it's enough to where they name a department after you. Why do you think most hospitals have entire wings named after people? Like The Jim and Susan Warbeck Cancer Center. Do you think it's because Jimmy and Sue are just "nice" folks, or do you think they might have donated a truck load of money? Duh!

But Harv, "what if I don't really want to leave a ton of money when I pass? What if I want to live my best life and use most or even all my money (capital) while I'm alive?" You don't want to spend your working or freedom capital UNLESS ....you are much, much older and you pretty well know that there's no way you can outlive your money. Then you can slooooowwwwwwly start spending chunks of your capital. For example, an older friend of mine named Sandy was for the most part retired by the time she was 50. She had sold her business for a huge amount of money. She only spent the eggs/earnings from her working capital until she reached 70. She then figured out that if she spent $2 million dollars a year of her accumulated capital she would run out of money when she was... 135 years old! Even though she is super optimistic even she believed that she might not live that long. Here's the funny part. She actually tried to spend $2 million a year every year but she already had everything she ever wanted, and her biggest expense was now travel and so she actually found it a challenge to spend that much. (Remember, she's still earning more "eggs" as well.) So, she spent what she could including taking her kids and her friends on amazing trips and giving them overly generous gifts and then got involved in several charities and the rest of the money went to help them.

Maybe you'll have no problem spending your goose but just make absolutely sure you start drawing that capital down when you are certain, what's the word? certain, you will never outlive your money including if you have a medical condition or emergency or assisted care that could cost a fortune. And even then, I'd leave a substantial amount untouched just in case they come up with a magic pill that adds 10 or 20 years to your life. Are you picking up what I'm putting down? (Do people still say that? Probably not. Let's try again…) Are you getting where I'm coming from?

It’s your money and it’s your life. You get to choose what to do and how to do it. Just be smart about it. Don’t get overzealous spending money you don’t have, or money you may need later. No surprises, especially when you’re 80. Make sense?

Even after all of this, at my seminars I still get the comment; “Ok Harv I get it. I definitely don’t want to run out of money in my “older” years, but it just seems a lot easier to go with the financial planners view of using your capital, your golden goose, to live off. That way you don’t need as much money to be financially free. It still feels like your way is “overkill.”

Would you like to know my reply? Are you sure? You’re not going to like it, but we’ve been together for quite a while now and hopefully you’re getting used to my “tough love” style so here goes.

Here’s my answer: “Spoken like a true ‘broke’ person or ‘middle class’ person at best!” Yes, of course, accumulating less money than more is a lot easier. But hello, the end result is that you have a lot less money. And a lot less money means you are living “comfortably” at best and you missed the whole point of this teaching. I’m not here to teach you to live a comfortable, middle-class life. I’m here to teach and encourage you to live a rich life! And here’s some breaking news. To live a “rich” life you need to be “rich”! The only question is how rich? Is it $10M? $20M? $50M? Or more?

Sure, I agree 100% that if you are fortunate enough to have a nice passive business income vehicle, or get high value stock options, or have a substantial pension in place when you choose to stop, or slow down your work, that would be awesome. I love that for you. But again, I'd much rather that all be in addition, what's the word? addition, over and above the income/eggs you are receiving from your working capital/golden goose. In other words, these supplements make you even richer and allow you to live an even more wonderful lifestyle. Make sense?

Also, remember that your financial intention, your Forever Free amount, is for the FUTURE. When? The future!

So, here's a question you may have not considered; how much do you think things are going to cost in the future? Doesn't it seem like the price of everything has gone crazy in the last 5 years alone? Now let's take this down the road a bit. Do you really think that prices are going to go down? Maybe on another planet, but no one I know believes that prices are going down on this planet, long term. To the contrary, prices have always gone up and up and up and up (add 100 more "ups") and will continue to do so. You think the cost of living is high now? Ha! Just wait.

What do you think prices of everything will be in 5 years? 10 years? 20 years? 30 years? 40 years? And beyond. I would bet that in say 30 years the same luxury car today that's $150,000 will be $500,000 or much more. The same nice house that today is 3 million will be at least 10 or 15 or $20 million. My parents bought the house I grew up in for… believe it or not … $8,000. I was visiting my childhood neighborhood a while ago and met up with an old friend who moved into his parents' house when they passed away. It was just down the street from my old place. Their house was exactly the same type of semi-detached, brick home I lived in. Today that $8,000 house goes for.... hold on to your seats... $500,000!!! That's over 60 times more! And that's the way it is for everything. Prices never, I repeat, never go down for long. They go up and up and up.

Another example isn't something the average person would necessarily relate to, but it does solidify my point.

The other day I heard that the Boston Celtics basketball team was sold. The team was bought in 2002 for $360 million dollars. That's extreme right? I guess not because it was sold in 2025, just 13 years later for.... wait for it.... 6.1 BILLION dollars! That's almost 20 times more! And I'm going to bet right now that in another 13 years the cost to buy that team will be well over 50 or 60 or 70 BILLION dollars. Are you still questioning that the price of everything will go up and up and up?

So no, I don't think having an intention for MORE money is overkill. I would much rather have you "overkill" your financial achievement than "underkill" it and never have the opportunity to live a first-class, affluent, rich life for you and your loved ones. Yes or Yes?

Having said all that, there is a way to have the best of all worlds. Would you like to hear about it? I sure hope you said, "heck yes." Ok.

It's best illustrated by a real-life example. Here we go.

I was having dinner with a close acquaintance of mine who has a sister, named Sharon. He told me that Sharon owns 12 video arcades. She has inside staff and also employs a manager and a bookkeeper so she doesn't have to be involved much anymore. Each arcade nets about $40,000 a year but again she's got 12 of them. That's almost half a million dollars a year in passive business income.

The cool thing is that she's fairly young, in her early 40s, and has another business working for her. It's an online affiliate business that's doing quite well and growing nicely. She's systemized the business so she doesn't have to spend more than a few hours a week operating it. Meaning this too is a passive income business. Right now it's only making about $150,000 a year but she's expecting that to double or even triple, so that within five years she should be making at least half a million a year off of her online passive business as well.

In addition, she spends about 30 hours a week working at her "active" income business, which is graphics design "consulting". She doesn't actually do the artwork anymore. She just provides "ideas and concepts" to the CEO and Marketing Directors of the companies with whom she works. She earns about $200,000 a year doing that.

Let's put all this together. Right now, she already earns about $650,000 a year in passive income which she believes will move to at least a million dollars a year in the next 5 years. Plus, she earns an additional $200,000 currently in “active” income. Now you might be asking, why does she continue to do her consulting work if she’s already financially free with her $650,000 a year in passive income? Two reasons; First, she enjoys her work. She’s great at it and it gives her a lot of satisfaction to see her ideas implemented and rolled out on a national level. Second, she doesn’t have a millionaire mind, she has a MULTI-millionaire mind! Consequently, she isn’t overspending right now. Instead she is using a huge chunk of her earnings, both active and passive, to feed her golden goose/working capital investments that include real estate, equity (stocks), and private lending opportunities.

According to her brother, she says she wants to work until “she doesn’t feel like working anymore.” That’s kind of a nice position to be in, don’t you think?

Ok, so what did we learn from this example?
Mainly that you can have a combination of strategies working for you.

In Sharon’s case, she has 2 passive businesses, plus 1 active business, plus her investments which are growing her golden goose/working income for the future. In short, she is going to be rich and able to live any way she chooses WITHOUT working. Great or Great?

Can you model Sharon? Maybe not using the exact businesses and active income and investment methods she is using but you can certainly employ a combination of elements just like she has. True or True?

And that's how the combination could work. A blend of active income plus passive business income plus continuously increasing your contribution to your golden goose/working capital. And eventually you ADD any stock options if you have them, plus any pensions plus your social security at some point. Are you catching my drift?

It all adds up to the goal of first-class freedom and eventually RICH?

If this to you is "overkill" then I have to be really, really honest with you. It appears that your 2 primary goals in life are "comfort" and "convenience" (do what's easy). In my seminars I'm well known for saying something that I hope you take to heart. Here it is:

Comfort and convenience are the kiss of death to success!
– T. Harv Eker

My friends, there is a big, big, big difference between being comfortable and being RICH! As I say:

If you go for comfortable, there's a good chance you will never be rich, but if you go for rich, there's a good chance you'll end up very comfortable. – T. Harv Eker

Make sense? I sure hope so.

I want you to go for being RICH! VERY RICH! First because it's an awesome lifestyle. Second because you get to contribute to causes that are dear to you. Third you can stop "stressing" about money, and you can put your attention on just enjoying every minute of your life! That my friends is the epitome of a MULTI-millionaire mind! Are you in? Yes or Yes or Yes or Yes!

Let's do a declaration to engrain this.

Put your hand on your heart and say...

I choose to be rich!

Say it again.

I choose to be rich!

And one more time so it goes deep into your body, mind and soul.

I choose to be rich!

Now touch your head with your index finger and say...

"I have a MULTI-millionaire mind"

Great work!

"Ok Harv, I'm grudgingly getting the point. You want me to set my sights on becoming rich so I can lead a rich life. Right? So how much money is that?"

Another great question. First, whenever we refer to the amount of wealth someone has, we use their "net worth". As you probably know, that simply means the value of the assets you own minus whatever funds you owe (liabilities).

So let me break it down for you based on the people I know. How they live. What that lifestyle costs. And their net worth. Are you ready? Let's go.

HARV'S "ARE YOU RICH YET?" CHART:

If you have a net worth of:

1 million dollars = LOWER MIDDLE CLASS
3 million dollars = MIDDLE CLASS
5 million dollars = UPPER MIDDLE CLASS
10 million dollars = AFFLUENT
20 million dollars = FIRST CLASS (Poor Rich!)
50 million dollars = RICH
100 million dollars = WEALTHY
500 million dollars = UBER WEALTH or UBER RICH (at that level nobody gives a hoot about what you call it! ☺)

In today's world, and for sure, sure, sure in tomorrow's world, I wouldn't consider anyone RICH unless they had a minimum net worth of $50,000,000.

That's going to get you an amazingly, fantastic "rich" life but not what I'm calling a "wealthy" life. But that's ok... at least for now.

Let’s go for “rich” and after that, if the way is clear, we can up level our game and go for “wealthy.” Deal?

By the way, I got the term “Poor Rich” from a friend of mine while we were having dinner with at the club. I was asking him for his opinion on what amounts constitute each of the labels above and was totally surprised that his numbers were identical to mine! It was as though he had read my chart. Literally identical. The only thing that was different was when I asked him how he’d label a net worth of $20,000,000 he didn’t use the term “First-Class” (that’s not how people usually speak, but it’s great for our purposes) he called that level; “Poor Rich”. I thought that was awesome. First, because it’s unique and I hadn’t heard it before. Second, because it’s so true. Because at that level you’re rich enough to buy almost anything but not rich enough to buy everything you’d really want. And you’re barely rich enough to live free for the rest of your life without spending your golden goose. Passive income/eggs alone would only be $500,000 a year. (That’s what just the expenses are on our friend Robert’s 3 homes.)

“OMG Harv, you’re killing me. Once again, these numbers are not in my realm of possibilities.”

And once again, I get it. Remember, I have almost a million seminar students alone. Guess what? 99% of them don’t believe they can achieve anything close to these numbers when they arrive at my 3-day course. But by the time they leave, they not only believe it, they also have the mindset needed to achieve it and that's exactly what we're doing, and have been doing with you the entire time. Getting your subconscious used to the idea of being "rich."

Again…

It's not about where you start, it's about where you end and making sure you enjoy the journey along the way.

True or True?

I can assure you that more people than you could imagine have serious amounts of money. In fact, according to the latest census, in America alone there are currently about 150,000 people that have a net worth of over $50,000,000. Now if you believe that number of 150,000, I'm guessing you just got off the proverbial "boat." So let me rephrase that, there are 150,000 people that "reported" a net worth of over $50,000,000. Can I ask you a question? Do you really think well-to-do folks are thrilled about telling everyone their "real" net worth? Not a chance. So, my guess is that the more accurate number is at least triple that and maybe more, a lot more. Suffice it to say, a lot of people have a lot of money! True or True?

By now you might be asking; "so how the heck do all these people have all this money?" That's another great question. Without getting too heavily into details, there are really only a few ways people get rich. Would you like to learn them? No? Ok. Maybe next time. Don't freak out, I'm only kidding.

Alright, here we go. Here's how people get rich. (Caveat: these aren't the only ways, but these are the ways with which I have experience either personally or through discussions with my many wealthy friends and acquaintances. In the end, I think that pretty well all routes to wealth can be deemed as part of one of these methods.)

Alright, here we go.... (didn't I just say that?)

HOW THE RICH GET RICH

Method #1 – Work yourself up into a high paying JOB with strong performance bonuses. Save a good chunk of that money into your "Forever Free" Account/Golden Goose (not to be spent). Invest it wisely (including stocks, real estate, and alternatives) over a long term.

Method #2 – Same as #1 but add in STOCK OPTIONS.

Method #3 – Start a BUSINESS with or without partners. Earn a high income from that business. Save a majority of that money into your "Forever Free" Account/Golden Goose (not to be spent). Invest it wisely over a long term.

This business can be offline or online which of course is extremely popular today. The online business could involve selling hard good products or info products or being an affiliate or a podcaster or an influencer or a Youtuber, as well as dozens of other online opportunities.

Under the heading of owning a business we also have creating wealth through ROYALTIES.

An example would be my Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book which I already shared with you, has made me millions.

I know people who have made a fortune with an app they created.

I know other folks who made their fortune creating a video game.

Remember the show Seinfeld? Jerry Seinfeld was smart enough to keep the rights to his show and now makes a fortune on the reruns. Seinfeld is now a billionaire! Yes, he made a sh*t ton of money from his show but guess what he did with that money? He invested in real estate and made even more. A lot more!

I have another friend who made a fortune with a screenplay, and a neighbor who made her fortune selling her art, and another really good friend who made her fortune as a songwriter.

And the reason all these art forms are under the heading of "business" is that you have to view them and run them as a business if you want to make any real money. Otherwise, you'll be part of the starving artist group. And that's of zero interest to us. True or True?

Method #4 – Same as #3 but you SELL YOUR BUSINESS and then invest the proceeds wisely.

Method #5 – Same as #3 but you take your company PUBLIC and invest your proceeds wisely.

Method #6 – Professional INVESTOR: Learn, learn, learn then start with a small amount until your system is proven and then keep going and growing. This area could include real estate, or stock, or crypto, or collectibles, or any other form of investment that appeals to you.

By the way – the word is "investor" not "Gambler". Do people get rich gambling? Sure. A millionth of 1% maybe. Remember, we are here to accumulate money not lose it. I do not recommend trying to become a professional gambler. A little secret... back in the day I used to play poker for a living. I should say, I used to play poker for a "bare" living. It's a hard, hard, hard road and you can get wiped out easily. P.S. The poker you see on T.V. has been thoroughly edited to keep the excitement going and keep you watching. In reality, if you want to win long term...it's boring as hell. (Hard pass!)

On the other hand, I've created a good portion of my wealth in real estate. As I wrote in my book; there's a saying;

"Don't wait to buy real estate. Buy real estate and wait."

And for those of you who believe real estate is way overpriced, maybe it is, but in the future, it will be even more and more and more and more...overpriced, ad nauseam!

I know that a lot of younger people have been seeing online advice not to buy your own home but to rent instead... for a lifetime. All I can say is "good luck with that." Are you kidding me?

The most money the average person will make in their lifetime could easily be the appreciation in their own home assuming they bought in a popular or growing area and not somewhere in the boonies. Whoever is spouting that "rent for life" advice must be in the apartment rental business because they're sure not in the wealth-building business. It's dumb because it's short-term thinking and rich people think long-term. Yes or Yes?

Method #7 – INHERIT a substantial amount of money and invest it wisely. Just because you inherit funds, regardless of the amount, doesn't mean you'll be rich unless you keep that money and hopefully grow it. I have many friends who have either "gifted" their kid(s) a small or large fortune (for estate tax purposes) or given their kid(s) their business to run. Maybe it's the quality of people I am fortunate to hang out with, but I don't know one adult kid who has turned into a drug addict or a bum or a party animal. Every single one of these kids is working as hard if not harder than their parents and creating new and more current ways to grow the business and their wealth. It's common for people, (basically broke people) to scream that "most rich people inherited their wealth." Again, that is complete B.S. A study by Fidelity Investments found that a whopping 88% of millionaires are self-made!

I’ve been waiting for the perfect spot to give you one of my key rules for wealth. Ready?

“If you want to be rich, don’t listen to broke people.”
– T. Harv Eker

Method #8 – Get LUCKY with a WINDFALL event. Get some money from somewhere, yours or borrowed, and invest it in real estate, a stock or crypto, or a collectible that by either luck or smarts skyrockets in value in a short or long period of time.

Examples: As I mentioned, one of my homes increased in value by over 10 million dollars in just 3 years. Again, thank you Covid!

One of my students went all in on crypto in the very early days. Now she’s known as a “whale”. She started with $300,000 and has turned that into $30 million in the last 5 years.

I have a close friend who bought stock in Microsoft, Amazon, Apple, Google (Alphabet) all in their infancy, and Nvidia well before it took off, and turned $100,000 into over $15 million. I hope you realize there will be dozens of other companies who will mimic this extreme growth over the next several years. Hopefully you’ll have invested in them.

Method #9 – Become a PROFESSIONAL ATHLETE:
I wouldn’t normally talk about this route to wealth because of how minuscule of a percentage of people “make it” to the pros, but I’ve been discussing this topic with one of my club member friends who is a well-known pro athlete so I'm adding it in because there are a couple of important points to make. Being a pro athlete could also be a combination of Method #1 (high paying JOB) because believe it or not most athletes get paid as an "employee" of their team.

I didn't even know that until recently when I was sitting beside a very large man at the airport and we started chatting. I asked him what he did and he said, "I work for the Denver Broncos football team." I scratched my head because I thought it was odd that such a huge guy would be sitting behind a desk working for a team. I asked him what kind of job he had and he answered, "I'm an offensive lineman." Bingo!

I looked him up and sure enough he is a starter for the Broncos and one of the highest paid players at his position in the entire league. And even though he makes a ton of money he will still have to follow the rule everyone else has to follow and invest wisely.

I could also add professional athlete to Method #3, which is to own your own business. Why? Because most athletes, now even college athletes, make a lot of their income by promoting other people's products and services. That's not part of their sport skill but it better be part of their business skill if they want to do well. I have a close friend who deals with a lot of pro athletes and he teaches them do public relations and camera work training. Smart or Smart?

Bottom line, regardless of whether you ever become a professional athlete, the lessons here are still to make sure you be the best at what you do, get paid well for it, excel at the business part, and invest wisely. Does all of this make sense? I hope so... for your bank account's sake!

Ok so I just gave you the 9 methods that people I know personally used to create their wealth. As you can see there's a few things most of these methods have in common. Again, they earn a high income. Often with a combination of both active and passive income structures. They save much of that money and put it into their Forever Free/Golden Goose Account (not to be spent). They invest wisely (keep growing their goose/working capital) over the long term.

Let's compare this with what the AVERAGE person does…

They get and stay at a fairly low paying job.
They spend most or all their money (even if they have a high paying job).
They don't invest and never have their money work for them.
They end up flipping burgers at McDonalds when they're 65 years old.
Or they try to live off their social security. Less than $2000 a month.
They basically live a broke life.

But Harv, "What if I don't have the knowledge or the skills to get a job that pays a lot."

If you don't have the knowledge or skills to get a high paying job what do you do? Two words of advice. Get them!

Go back to school online or offline, or learn by taking whatever job you can get in the field, or get an internship. Do what it takes to attain a new skill that is timely and needed today, and get great at it, and be in demand, and then get that super high paying job.

I just had a convo with the coffee barista at one of my clubs. She told me that her son was in the army. I asked why? (Just out of curiosity because I don't really know anyone who is in the armed services). She replied that he didn't have the money for school and that the army is training him to be a bioscience engineer. He is getting out next year and already has a job lined up with a medical company pulling down $200,000 a year to start! He's 20 years old! Point being that there are dozens of new skills in high demand and you need to learn one of them and be awesome at it so that YOU are in demand.

I don't think I have to tell you what the top "programmers" are getting paid.

One of my best friends has one of the highest-level positions at a company that has a name and logo that's a "fruit." He told me that the top programmers there can earn over $1,000,000 a year and often start at $400,000 a year. And that's the going rate if you want the best people otherwise, they just go to non-fruit companies which are their rivals. He told me that the competition for top people in every facet of the tech business is fierce.

My daughter-in-law now works at Google and I recently had the opportunity to go to their offices for lunch. It was an eye-opening as well as a tummy-filling experience. The restaurant takes up almost an entire floor of the building. There's a salad station, a sushi station, a pizza station, a deli station, a burger station, a vegetarian station, a desert station and a soft drink station as well as a gourmet coffee station with 5 kinds of milks you could choose from. And it's all FREE for employees and their guests!

So why would this highly successful company put out this kind of spread? Two reasons:

1. To keep their employees in the building so they can get back to work more quickly.
2. To keep them working for Google. Today virtually all major companies are scrambling to hire and keep the best people working for them, and lunch perks are just the beginning.

In short, they're scouring the planet for highly skilled employees. And if this type of work appeals to you and you level up your game so you're in demand, you just might hit the job market jackpot. See you at lunch! ☺

I often hear, "But Harv, I already work full time. I don't have the time to learn a new skill?"

And to these folks I say; Sorry, that rationale is lame and worn out. Gimme a break! You have the same amount of time as everyone else.

It's not how much time you have; it's how you USE the time you have.

And my bet is you're doing a lot of other stuff when you could be learning a new craft, even part time. No excuses. You must want success badly enough to sacrifice a few things that in the end may not matter. Like maybe hanging out with friends at the bar or watching T.V. or Netflix every night!

Do you get my drift?

Again, one of the major characteristics highly successful people share is the willingness to do whatever it takes.
Multi-millionaires do whatever it takes.
The most successful businesspeople do whatever it takes.
The most successful athletes do whatever it takes.
The most successful people at every endeavor do whatever it takes.
Do you? Will you? We'll see.
And how will we know? Simple; by your results. True or True?

"But Harv, I like the idea of owning my own business but I'm not sure how, and I'm worried that I might lose the little amount of money I have?"

Valid. Except once again, you can learn how to make a fortune in any business you choose.

Business success is a very learnable skill.

Thousands of people have made billions of dollars owning their own business and guess what? The principles and strategies they use are for the most part, all the same.

Do you recall that I went through somewhere between 10 and 12 different businesses (depending on your definition of a real business) that didn't work? What did I learn? I learned how NOT to do business. I got tired of trying to figure it out on my own so I finally began taking seminars and courses and read books and interviewed people and did everything I could to learn from others. What happened? I recognized some specific principles that most of these successful businesses used. I then opened my next business and put these principles to the test and starting with less than zero money ($2,000 I borrowed on my credit card), I became a millionaire in only 2 years!!!!

And that's how and why I got into the training business. It really bugged me to watch good, ambitious, well-intentioned people fail miserably at their business. And I could see exactly why. They were doing exactly what I did when my businesses sucked and I was broke. So I started teaching people what I did that didn't work and what I did and do that does work. And now I've been fortunate enough to have over a million students from virtually every part of the planet with thousands of success stories. And it's not about me. It's about the principles.

Again, business success is a skill virtually anyone can learn and get great at. The good news is that if you are strong at business and specifically your business, chances are you will become rich! Good or Good?

Of course, not everybody resonates with owning their own business. And not everyone will end up earning a huge income. What to do? Remember that one of the key elements virtually all financially successful people share is, regardless of their income they "invest wisely."

If you recall, in the Secrets of the Millionaire Mind book I say that...

"A person who has a huge income but doesn't manage and invest their money wisely can easily end up broke, while a person with a much lower income but manages and invests their money wisely will usually end up financially free and maybe even rich." – T. Harv Eker

The good news is that in the same way business is a learnable skill, investing is a learnable skill too.

Ok, one last thing. In my view it's probably the most important factor to success. Ready?

It's YOU! Business is a vehicle. Investment is a vehicle, but YOU are the one driving those vehicles.

"You are the root of your success. You are the root of your mediocrity. You are the root of your failure."
– T. Harv Eker

Consciously or unconsciously it's still you. Your mindset, your beliefs, your habits and your character are the software of your success and that will determine what you do and how you do it. True or True? As I talk about in my book, you must grow your “self” to be super strong so you can support the growth of your money and wealth.

The message is simple. If you want to live a first-class lifestyle you will have to up-level your financial objectives. Remember, everything starts with the right intention. That is why I wrote this MULTI-Millionaire Mind bonus.

I hope you now realize that becoming a mere millionaire will not cut it. To be financially free in an affluent way, will take a minimum working capital of 10 million dollars (not including your main home). To be financially free in a truly first-class way, will probably take close to 20 million dollars. And to be financially free in a truly rich way will take about 50 million dollars. And yes, you can combine passive income from other sources but for the most part, let’s get your working capital/golden goose as fat as possible because that’s the one we’ll be able to count on for the rest of our lives. Make sense?

I suspect many of you are still thinking these numbers seem out of reach, but as we discussed there are more people than you can ever imagine that achieve these financial levels and much, much more. So the question isn’t whether these numbers are out of reach, obviously they’re not. The question is do you believe these amounts are out of reach FOR YOU.

Determining Your Forever Free Number (Stage 6: The Commitment)

Ok. Time to make your “Forever Free” number strong, clear and real for you. That means making a commitment.

“Yikes, Harv. I hate to commit. It’s so unwavering!”

Yes, I get it. You’re not alone. Most people don’t like to commit for the very reason you mentioned. But that’s because most people don’t really understand commitment and what it can do for you.

The definition of commitment is: “To devote oneself unreservedly.”

So yes, when you commit, you will need to “devote yourself unreservedly.” Meaning you will do what it takes to succeed. Is there something wrong with that? For people with a broke or middle-class mindset, ya. They don’t want to commit or do whatever it takes. It could be too much work, too much time, too much to learn, too many challenges. And if that’s the case they should also add, TOO LITTLE REWARD.

Here's the dirt. If you are not willing to do what it takes to succeed at the highest level; YOU WON’T.

Sorry, that’s just the way it is. So now it’s time to decide. Do you want to be rich or not? Do you want to be financially free in a first-class manner or not? For most people that’s an easy answer; yes, sure they “want” it.

But I hate to tell you that “wanting” is not good enough. “Wanting” is not going to get you rich. Wanting is flimsy. It’s meaningless. Everyone “wants” to be successful and almost everyone “wants” to be rich. How’s that working so far? How come 98% of the population will never make it to the level we’ve been discussing?

The answer is, there’s a huge difference between “wanting” and “doing”. And there’s a huge difference between “doing” and “doing whatever it takes for as long as it takes.” Are you following?

Time to choose. Are you going to be one of the 98% (broke and struggling or middle-class and somewhat comfortable) or are you going to join us and be one of the 2% (affluent, first-class, free, rich)?

It’s up to you. And yes, this is a pure and simple choice. I repeat, choice. You choose your life. You choose your lifestyle. You choose your level of success.

And sure, sh*t happens. But you choose your response to the sh*t. And your response will determine your outcome. Yes or Yes?

Are you ready to say “fk it” and go for it? Are you ready to commit and do what it takes to make it happen for you and your family and all the people you can help with your wealth?

I want to be clear. When I say, “whatever it takes.” I don’t mean being an ahole or hurting anyone or anything. This is about you. Believe it or not you can succeed to the highest levels while still be a good person, in full integrity, coming from the heart and truly helping people and even the planet. Good or Good?

One of my most quoted saying is:

You can be kind, generous, loving and spiritual and really, really, rich!
-T. Harv Eker

Ok. Time to make your commitment real. Are you ready? Say, “I’m ready.” Thank you.

In a moment you’re going to make your commitment.

I’m going to show you what it looks like and give you a few examples to follow but the numbers you choose will be your own. To keep this simple we are going to use “pretax” numbers. That means you will need to increase your amounts to reflect that there will be tax to pay on your passive income.

If you choose to live on say $300,000 a year, “clear, after tax”, you will have to earn about $450,000 annually. In this case, your working capital goose will need to be $9 million. (At 5% return, $450,000 x 20.)
(I’ll bet you’re wondering how I got so great at math. Ok. I’m willing to share my secret. It’s called a calculator! ☺)

So here's what your commitment will look like.

“I, ________, (state your first and last name) do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of $ __________. (enter your pretax annual cash flow) To do that I commit to creating a working capital of $__________. (multiply your annual cash flow by 20) “Nothing will stop me. So be it.”

EXAMPLE 1:

“I, Eddie Danko, do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of $400,000. To do that I commit to creating a working capital of $8,000,000. Nothing will stop me. So be it.”

(Eddie’s after tax income at about 30%, with a decent accountant, will be about $280,000. This is your “I don’t need a lot. I just need my kayak and backpack but I’m still traveling first class”, sort of lifestyle. If that’s you, good on ya.)

EXAMPLE 2:

“I, Susan Miller, do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of $600,000. To do that I commit to creating a working capital of $12,000,000. Nothing will stop me. So be it.”

(After about 30% tax Susan can live on about $420,000 without working. Not our friend Robert’s lifestyle but pretty darn good and definitely in the 2% club. Well done, Susan!)

EXMPLE 3:

“I, Shawn Davis, do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of $2,000,000. To do that I commit to creating a working capital of $40,000,000. Nothing will stop me. So be it.”

(Shawn has made it. He can live on well over $1,000,000 a year, without working, clear, after tax! He and his family can pretty well do and have whatever they want! And contribute to whoever they want. Because this $40 million is working capital and not net worth, we know that Shawn will most likely be living in a truly magnificent house that’s probably over $5 million, maybe more. We can also assume that Shawn might own at least one or two vacation homes he is not yet counting as working capital. Meaning Shawn and his family most likely have a net worth of $50,000,000 and hit the level of RICH! Welcome to the .05% club Shawn! It’s rarified air and you did it. Props!)

Ok. Now it’s your turn to fill in the blanks.

Do that now and do it in writing so it’s hard and visible. Not in your head where it’s flimsy and gone with the wind.

I’ll give you a minute. La la la la la. (waiting).

Ready? Here we go!

The following must be said OUT LOUD. I don’t care where you are or who’s around. If necessary, you can whisper but do it out loud so at least you can hear yourself. You're going to put your hand on your HEART. Best if you can STAND and say it with POWER!

Commitment to First-Class Freedom:

"I, __________ ___________, do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of $___________.
To do that I commit to creating a working capital of $__________.
Nothing will stop me. So be it."

Well done! Awesome! Amazing! Fantastic! Incredible!

You are now one in a million. For real. You've just accomplished what hardly anyone else will do. You are CLEAR. You are COMMITTED. You are CONGRUENT. That's half the battle. I love that for you. Great work!

Now would be a good time to review what I taught you earlier regarding the guaranteed success formula. Do you recall it?

Learn, Do, Learn, Do, Learn, Do, etc, etc, etc ....
Never Give Up!

My friends, again and again and again and again, I can assure you beyond a shadow of a doubt that financial success is learnable. I know that for sure because as I've mentioned, I have over a million students and thousands of them have become highly successful and most of them started with little or nothing and become very rich based on what they learned at my courses. So I know it can be done if, and it's a big if, you are willing to learn what to do and how to do it.

Remember I was broke. Not just for a few months but for almost 10 whole years. There were many nights that I had to choose between having dinner or using that money to put gas in my car so I could try and make a living the next day and more often than not I had to choose the gas. That's why as I said earlier, it bothered me, and still bothers me, when people struggle both mentally and financially. Again, that's why I got into teaching.

That's also why I wrote my book S*ecrets of the Millionaire Mind* and why I've written what thousands of my students say are some of the most powerful and effective personal success programs on the planet.

So yes, I'm a huge believer in learning.

People tell me that one of their favorite concepts in Secrets of the Millionaire Mind is;

"Every master was once a disaster." – T. Harv Eker

Meaning everyone starts out being "bad" at whatever they're attempting to succeed in. Tiger Woods (one of the best golfers in history) didn't start out hitting the ball 300 yards on day 1. So how did he get there? His Dad. His dad was his coach and taught him every nuance of the game of golf and with ongoing learning and consistent practice, Tiger became the best.

So that's where you begin. The exact same place everyone else who becomes successful begins; by knowing where you want to go or what you want to achieve; in this case, first-class financial freedom or becoming rich, and then "learning" how to do that.

My friends, financial success is not a sprint. Although we'd all love it to be quick, it's usually not. Success is more like a marathon. The good news is that you don't have to start super-fast. But you do have to start.
If you're ready to learn how to succeed to the highest level it would be my honor to teach you... if you can handle me. Haha!

Ok. So where should you start your learning? You can "dive" into the ADVANCED full programs right away at https://www.harveker.com/education/.

But if I was you, I'd want to test the waters before I stepped in too deeply. To that end I recommend you begin with my street-smart Wealth Classes. They are very, very powerful, but even better they are all COMPLIMENTARY, as in no charge, totally free!

I created them as a gift to my students and I hope you take advantage of the teachings. You can find them all on my website, https://www.harveker.com/free-trainings/.

In mine, and my student's experiences, each of these trainings will be hugely valuable on your journey to wealth. That includes learning about money, business, life purpose and personal empowerment. We are holistic in nature. Meaning everything is connected to everything else. Yes or Yes?

So I would encourage you to listen or watch ALL of these complimentary wealth classes. But in case you prefer to pick and choose, is it ok if I give you a quick rundown of each program? I hope you said “heck yes” again, for your financial life’s sake. Each training runs anywhere from 45 minutes to 1 hour and 15 minutes. Of course you can hit “pause” any time you like.

Wealth Class #1: Zero to Multi-Millionaire

In this class I will teach you the 6 critical principles that took me from broke to earning millions and millions of dollars. It includes a step-by-step process to help you apply these principles in your life and current business immediately! If you are already in any sort of business, get ready to soar. Wealth Class #2: The 500 Million Dollar Secret

In this class I reveal the secret that made me a multi, multi, multi, multi (and I could go on for a while) millionaire creating over $500 million in revenue myself! My friends, there is a big, big, big difference in making money in business and making a TON of money in business and this class will give you the key. It’s quite the surprise for most people because they certainly don’t teach you this in Harvard Business School or any school for that matter.

Wealth Course #3: Teach and Get Rich

In this program I share the 9 insider secrets that will show you how to become an effective and confident speaker, trainer or coach while earning a fortune and making a positive impact in the world!

It doesn't matter if you want to teach online or offline. The strategies are the same. This is not about having the perfect info or the perfect style or the perfect diction or the perfect smile or the perfect clothes or any of that crap. It's about being totally authentic. You being you. Just there to help people but doing it in a way that attracts people to you and your message.

As an aside, even if you don't choose to be in the teaching business, this program will skyrocket your success. Why? Because teaching or training or content writing and delivery is one of best marketing tools you could ever utilize regardless of your product or service or even if you're in a job. This class has produced a ton of multi-millionaires all around the globe.
I love when someone emails me and says, "I just finished a program with the most amazing trainer ever! He/she taught just like you!" (Hmmm. I wonder if it's because over 50,000 people have taken my trainer course! I love it and I'm thrilled for them!)

Wealth Class #4: Passion, Purpose, And Profits

I designed this class to help you gain clarity and direction when it comes to finding your real passion and discovering your true purpose in life. My friends, this was a huge issue for me in my own life. I didn’t know what I really wanted to do. It took me a lot of challenging years to figure it out but I finally did and it was one of the most rewarding insights of my life.

In this class you'll also learn how to package your passion and purpose together in the real world to create huge financial success! Whether you realize it or not, you are here for a reason. Buckminster Fuller said, “Your purpose on this earth is to ‘add value ’to this generation and those that follow.” Not only will this allow you to be highly successful but have immense satisfaction and fulfillment in your life. In my experience, the combination of purpose, passion and profits are the epitome of real success and a truly “rich” life. Would you agree?

Wealth Class #5: Don’t Believe A Thought You Think

For sure one of my favorite classes I’ve ever created. Why? Because in it I reveal the actual SOURCE of what causes more or less success, more or less inner peace, better or worse relationships, better or worse health, and what may be considered the greatest secret to a better life! And what is that source?

Your mind. Your mind is either your friend or your enemy. Most people’s minds, and the thoughts they emit, are not supportive to success, happiness, or love in their lives. In short, that “voice in your head” is the biggest blocker and the only problem in your life. In this class I will show you how to manage your mind so that it helps instead of hurts you. Game changer!

Wealth Class #6: The Shocking Truth About Happiness

Here, in one of my newest classes, you'll discover my secret to becoming happy and staying happy no matter what your current situation is. The truth is, I thought that once I got off the often super stressful, crazy life of flying around the world teaching 350 days a year, I would be a lot happier and a lot more peaceful. So, I stopped. I semi-retired. That got me a lot more time for myself, but unfortunately, I wasn't any happier and I certainly wasn't any more peaceful.

This quest became my next project. For the next 5 years I devoted my full attention to finding the secrets to true happiness. And after all that time. I found there is only one, I repeat, one secret to finding happiness and that elusive sense of inner peace and well-being that can last a lifetime.

The fact is that just about everything we do, and don't do, is to be happy or happier at some level. True or True? Unfortunately, most people never discover the secret. In this class you will. And you'll learn my 7 simple strategies for implementing this into your life starting today.

This is the one class I asked, encouraged and even "forced" my adult kids to take. Ha ha. And yes, they did thank me for it... again and again and again. That's all great but what's a lot better is seeing them truly happy and having the ability to get "back on track" when things don't go the way they want. Good or Good? Life changer!

Again, all these COMPLIMENTARY WEALTH CLASSES are available to you at https://www.harveker.com/free-trainings/.

Before we go, I want to share a story that really helped me when I was struggling, and I believe has help a lot of my students. It's a reminder that even though you may not yet be experiencing the results you'd like in your life; you may actually be on the right path. I can't tell you how frustrated I was being broke and trying and trying and trying everything I could to become successful including taking course after course, and reading book after book, and learning and learning and learning, and still.... NOTHING!

There were so many times I questioned my goals and even myself. There were so many times I didn't believe I would or could ever be truly successful. But then I heard this story and I "got it." And from there I began to believe and get my confidence back. And lo and behold, next thing I knew, I was a millionaire, and shortly after that a multi-millionaire and it didn't seem to take very long and I was rich, really rich! A slow start does not mean a slow finish. In my experience the law of compounding takes effect, and your speed of success gets faster and faster and faster. Have you heard the saying, "the rich get richer?" They do get richer. First, because money makes money. Second because knowledge and experience also compound, so their success accelerates. Make sense?

Ok. This is the story of the Bamboo Tree and if you've heard it before, it's well worth hearing again and again and again.

The Tale of the Chinese Bamboo Tree

Once, a Chinese farmer planted a bamboo seed and watered it every day without fail.

For the first year, nothing happened. His neighbors saw him go to the same patch of dirt day after day and began to whisper behind his back.

By the second year, there was still no sign of growth. The whispers turned to laughter. "Why waste your time?" they'd say, shaking their heads.

But the farmer didn't stop. He kept watering that spot of earth, believing in the potential beneath the surface.

By the third and fourth years, the mockery only got louder. Yet, the farmer kept going, putting all his energy into what everyone else thought was a hopeless effort.

And then, after five years, something incredible happened. In only six weeks, the bamboo shot up nearly 80 feet into the air!

How is this possible?

How could this tree grow 80 feet tall in only six weeks?
The question should rather be:

Did that bamboo tree grow 80 feet tall in six weeks, or did it grow 80 feet tall in five years and six weeks?

What the neighbors didn't realize was that during those five years of seemingly no growth, the bamboo tree was developing a massive root system underground to support it's fast and huge growth.

Same with you. It might take years, but if you stay focused on your intention, are willing to do what it takes, and stick with it, you may experience exponential growth—just like a bamboo tree that grows 80 feet in just six weeks!

And looking back, you'll realize that your success didn't just come from those final six weeks, but from all the good work you invested over the years. Does that make sense?

"Look at a stonecutter hammering away at a rock, perhaps a hundred times without as much as a crack showing in it. Yet at the hundred and first blow it will split in two. It was not that last blow that did it, but all that had gone before."
— Jacob A. Riis

In short, it doesn't matter where you are now. If you are willing to continue to learn and grow I have no doubt that one day you will notice a tiny little sprout of success sticking up and next thing you know things will start to click, and then you "step on the gas" (expand), and all of a sudden you've got gobs of money in the bank, and you're totally free and maybe even rich!

Think big, start small!

Ok. That’s it. I want to leave you with one last quote. You might consider reading it every morning. I do.

“The path from dreams to success does exist.
May you have the vision to find it, the courage to get on to it, and the perseverance to follow it.”
- Kalpana Chawla, NASA Space Shuttle Astronaut

As we discussed earlier, repetition is the mother of learning. True or True? So we've created a 1-page "Commitment To First-Class Freedom" sheet for you.

I highly recommend you fill it out in your own handwriting, print the page, post it on your wall, and repeat this DAILY as a declaration. Make sure you stand with your hand on your heart and speak it out loud with power.

I have tens of thousands of students who have followed these directions and according to them, the results have been phenomenal.

The key is to make sure you also take daily ACTION towards your goals. Make sense?

Oh, and how long should you do this declaration? That's easy. Until you're FINANCIALLY FREE!! Yes or Yes or Yes?

I, ______________ ______________, do hereby commit to creating an annual passive income of
